

CHINESE REPEL JAPS IN SURPRISE COUNTER ATTACK

CHARLES E. IVES,
DEAN OF LEE CO.
BAR, DIED TODAYVeteran Barrister Was Called Before His Supreme Judge

(Telegraph Special Service.)
Amboy, Feb. 25.—Charles E. Ives, dean of Lee county attorneys and one of the oldest lawyers of northern Illinois, passed away at his home in Amboy this morning at 7 o'clock at the age of 89 years. He was one of three surviving members of the Amboy G. A. R. post, there being but two veterans still living who are members of the post. His death closed an illness of a few weeks duration.

Mr. Ives was a prominent and successful attorney of Amboy, which city was his place of residence since December, 1854. Immediately after the close of the Civil War, in which he had participated as a loyal defender of the Union he entered his father's law office and subsequently practiced in association with him for a period of twenty years, the firm being known as W. E. Ives & Son. Since 1908 he practiced his profession independently until forced to retire due to failing health.

Born in Kendall Co., Pa., his birth occurred at Pavilion, Kendall county, Illinois, on October 14, 1842, his parents being William E. and Susan Ives. The father remained an able and successful representative of the legal profession in Amboy from 1854 until his death more than a half century later. During that period he was honored by election to the position of State Attorney and also served as mayor of Amboy. His demise occurred in 1908 when he had attained the venerable age of eighty-seven and one-half years, while his wife was called to her final rest in 1933 at the age of 63 years. Representatives of the Ives family, which is of English origin, came to the United States at an early period in the history of this country.

In the acquirement of an education Charles E. Ives attended preparatory school at Mt. Morris and later pursued his studies at the University of Chicago, leaving that institution in 1862, however, in order to join the Boys in Blue in their defense of the Union. In June of that year he became a member of the Sixty-ninth Illinois Volunteer regiment, and in 1864 reenlisted in the 146th Illinois Infantry, serving with the latter command until the cessation of hostilities. He proved a brave and valorous soldier and received home with a creditable military record.

Was Capable Lawyer
Having determined upon the legal profession as a life work, he entered the law office of his father and eventually became his partner, practicing in association with him under the firm style of W. E. Ives & Son for a period of 20 years. Since 1908 he practiced independently in Amboy. His success in a professional way afforded the best evidence of his capabilities in his professional career was due to the fact that in no instance would he permit himself to go into court with a case unless he had absolute confidence in the justice of his client's case. Basing his efforts on this principle, it naturally followed that he seldom lost a case in support of which he was enlisted.

On March 18, 1874 at Fenton, Michigan, he was united in marriage to Miss Evelyn A. Lamb, who passed away four years ago. To this union were born three children William E., of Toledo, Ohio; and George S. and Mrs. Eva F. Blocher of Franklin Grove.

Mr. Ives was a Republican in his political views and served as Justice of the Peace in Amboy for several years. He also acted as Town Clerk and made a highly creditable record as a public official. His estimate of deportment, his civility of address with the total absence of anything sinister or to conceal, foretold a man who was ready to meet any obligation of life with the confidence and courage that came of conscious personal ability, a right conception of things and a habitual regard for what was best in the exercise of human activities.

The funeral arrangements had been completed at a late hour today and will be announced later.

Loftus Candidate
For Representative

John H. Loftus, Commissioner of Streets and Allevs, today announced his candidacy for the office of Representative from the 35th district, subject to the Democratic primaries. Mr. Loftus stated he had entered the race at the instigation of many friends after considerable deliberation.

He was born on a farm in Lee county, coming to Dixon when 21 years of age, and this city has since been his home. He is engaged in the real estate and insurance business. He was elected City Commissioner in 1927 and was re-elected in 1931 by the largest vote ever given a commissioner in the city.

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

NAME OMITTED.

Inadvertently the First National Bank of Compton was omitted from the list of depositories for county funds published in last evening's Telegraph.

MOVE TO THIS CITY.

Mr. and Mrs. William Geigle and son have moved from Chicago to Dixon and are occupying the M. L. Dysart apartment on East Second street. Geigle was recently appointed to manage the Dixon store of Montgomery Ward & Co.

STOPPED ROOF FIRE.

The fire department responded to an alarm at 9 o'clock last evening, making a run to the American Cab & Body company plant on South Lincoln avenue, where sparks had started a fire on the roof of the boiler room. The blaze was extinguished with slight damage to the property.

TO FEDERAL HEARING.

Members of the sheriff's force and police department have been ordered to appear in the United States district court in Chicago Monday to testify at the hearing of Fred Bott of this city, charged in a federal indictment with violations of the prohibition act. The case has been set for hearing Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

TO HEAR INDIAN CHIEF.

Chief Brave Heart of the Challeen Indian tribe of northwest Washington, will address the students and faculty of the Dixon high school Friday morning at the general assembly period. The speaker, a college graduate who speaks seven Indian languages, will appear in his native costume giving a talk of habits of the Indian tribes of the northwest, their customs and relate some of their ancient tribal stories.

HAVE NO OPPOSITION.

No opposition will confront four Republican candidates for county office at the spring primaries, only two present incumbents filing their petitions with County Clerk Fred G. Dimick for re-election. State's Attorney Mark C. Keller, Circuit Clerk Edwin S. Rosecrans, Coroner Frank M. Banker and County Surveyor L. B. Neighbour filed their petitions for re-election.

HOSPITAL NEEDS.

The members of the board of the Katherine Shaw Bethel Hospital are asking for contributions of clean worn garments, old linen and muslin for cleaning cloths; also old plates and saucers to place under plants in flower pots; and are also asking for a feather bed from which to make pillows.

LICENSED TO WED.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by County Clerk Fred G. Dimick: Orvid Olof Larson of Rockford and Miss Lillian Corrine Hagburg of Moline; Warren Plummer of China township and Mrs. J. L. Schick of Nelson township; John Vittalero and Mrs. Alta E. Jaesler, both of Chicago; Ben. W. Faessler and Miss Freda M. Bott, both of Dixon.

THEORIZE 'MOON
MADNESS' CAUSE
OF GIRL'S DEATHPsychiatrist Advances A Belief In Death Of Philadelphia Girl

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Elsie Flothmeier, beautiful 22-year-old daughter of a Lutheran clergyman, whose nude body was found lying face downward on the floor of a deserted forest shack late yesterday, died of exposure after having been driven insane by the rays of a full moon, according to a theory advanced today by a prominent Philadelphia psychologist.

The hypothesis of "moon madness," Dr. Thaddeus Bolton, head of the psychology department at Temple University, told the United Press, long has been accepted by psychiatrists, and is known to have a serious effect on the minds of persons afflicted with nervous disorders.

Miss Flothmeier possessed a temperament which apparently made her susceptible to this form of insanity, in the psychologist's opinion. She suffered a nervous collapse in 1922 while visiting in Germany and had been of a neurotic disposition ever since.

Dazed By Moon's Rays

Apparently she wandered aimlessly about in the heavy woods near Fox Chase, mentally dazed by the full moon's light, knowing not where she was or what she was doing, but completely beneath the spell of the lunar rays.

Two boys came upon her body in a shack. Her clothing had been hung neatly on the branches of a gnarled berry bush. There were scratches on her body, indicating that she had stumbled about in the heavy bushes before reaching the shack. Dr. Bolton learned that the night had been cold and crisp, with a clear, full moon.

Science, he said, does not know precisely what effect the moon's rays have on particularly susceptible persons, but he said the idea is an ancient hypothesis. "The theory," he explained, "is based on observation of a natural condition among near-insane and nervous persons. The attacks of extreme nervousness usually recur at regular intervals—about 28 to 30 days apart. Coinciding as they do with the full moon, it has long been thought by many the moon's rays are responsible."

Manufacturers' Sale
Tax Promised Today

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Speaker Garner today forecast that the new tax bill would contain a levy on manufacturers' sales and that it would be completed within a week or ten days.

The Texas Democrat said the Ways and Means committee had gone over the sources of revenue "with a fine tooth comb" and found that "the only place to get the money is through a manufacturers' sales tax."

Instead of $400,000,000 needed to be raised through excise taxes as proposed by the Treasury, he explained, it was found $800,000,000 was needed. Secretary Mills has estimated that about $1,241,000,000 must be had to balance the 1933 budget.

The committee already has decided on increases in income and other taxes to raise about $450,000,000. Garner said he thought the Ways and Means committee was "pretty well convinced" that the sales tax was the best method of raising the needed funds.

Blast In Refinery
Kills Two Workers

Paulsboro, N. J., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Two workmen were killed today in the explosion of a circulating tower containing oil at the refining plant of the Vacuum Oil Company here.

The dead were Robert Ramer, 45, Greenwich, and LeRoy Gotsinger, 38, of Bridgeton, N. J.

The explosion shook the plant, situated along the Delaware river, and the roar was heard for several miles. Flames which followed the blast for a time threatened five other stills.

L. B. Van Loven, a representative of the company, said the explosion was caused by spontaneous combustion.

Wets Disrupt House
To Sign Vote Demand

Washington, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Anti-prohibitionists today disrupted House proceedings in their eagerness to sign a petition to force a House vote on the proposal to re-submit the 18th amendment to the states for a vote.

When Rep. LaGuardia, Repn., N. Y., notified the House that the long-awaited petition was on file at the Speaker's desk, anti-prohibitionists rushed from their desks and swarmed about the Speaker's table to sign.

BULLETIN

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The anti-hoarding drive has brought $60,000,000 back to circulation, President Hoover informed Frank Knox, head of the Citizens Reconstruction Organization today.

A telegram from the President said that $295,000,000 was estimated to have been hoarded when the organization was formed and up to Feb. 23 $60,000,000 had been lured into channels of trade.

Last Friday Knox said, the President had told him $51,000,000 had been returned to circulation, and the $9,000,000 additional had come out in three business days.

Washington, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Final details of a plan to offer an "unlimited issue" of small denomination bonds as part of President Hoover's anti-hoarding campaign will be announced at the Treasury late today.

This was made known at the White House by Secretary of the Treasury Mills, following a conference with the President.

The bonds, it is expected by the government, will help coax money from the hoarders by offering a safe investment.

Mills said that the bonds would be made available March 7. He said the amount of the issue would not be limited.

"We do not intend putting a roof on it," Mills said.

The bonds will be in $50, $100 and $500 denominations and will run for one year.

"We expect to decide definitely later today on the interest rate," he said, "and I think we will make the announcement at the Treasury after wiring Colonel Knox in Chicago."

Col. Frank Knox, Chicago newspaper publisher, is head of the President's anti-hoarding organization. In a statement several days ago, Mills said that the interest would be "at least one and one-half per cent." Prior to this there had been reports that the issue would bear between three and one-half per cent. The bonds will be sold through banks all over the country, the issue being handled somewhat in the manner of Liberty bonds during the World War.

New Life Saver Is Purchased By City

The city council has purchased a resuscitator and inhalator which yesterday afternoon was delivered to Chief William Mitchell of the fire department where the new piece of life saving equipment will be held in readiness for any emergencies. A demonstration was given yesterday afternoon at the fire department headquarters and each member of the department is to be instructed in its use in all cases. The resuscitator is the latest improvement in life-saving equipment and had been adopted by several of the larger cities and hospitals. The lung motor which has been in use for several years will be used as auxiliary equipment at the city hall.

Fr. Lonergan Will Have Part On Radio

Dixon friends of Rev. Fr. Joseph Lonergan, a native of this city, and prominent in American Legion affairs, will be interested to know that he will participate in a radio debate at 9 o'clock Saturday evening in the Public Affairs Institute, a Columbia Broadcasting System feature, which may be heard locally through station WBDM, Chicago. Fr. Lonergan's opponent will be Rabbi Wise, nationally known advocate of peace.

Beating of rain and snow on the face is recommended as a beauty treatment.

Six Hoarded $1,000
Bills In Circulation—

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Six hoarded $1,000 bills are back in circulation.

Ever since one day last June they had been in the possession of George Grakos. He took them out of the bank that day. The next day the bank failed and George told his friends how smart he was. Soon the whole neighborhood knew about it.

Last night George was listening to a radio crime story when two unexpected visitors, armed with pistols, called.

"What we want," they said, "is six $1,000 bills."

They got them, and George told the police that the $2,300 he hoarded in a trunk and which the robbers overlooked, would be put into circulation before somebody takes it away from him.

MYSTERY DEATHS
IN AUTO CRASHES
ARE INVESTIGATEDChicago Officers Seeking An Alleged Bigamist Today

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A dramatic story by a woman who said she was one of his many wives started a police hunt today for Ralph Root, 43, for questioning regarding bigamy, a prison escape, and mysterious deaths in automobile accidents.

Mrs. Jane Root made the charges at an inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Hazel Beckner Root, believed to have been the fugitive's most recent wife, and her daughter, Hazel May, 10. They were killed a week ago when Root's automobile plunged 30 feet from a railroad viaduct.

Police said they had learned that Root fled from the scene of the crash, registered under a false name at a hospital for treatment of minor injuries, and did not attend the funerals. There were life insurance policies totaling $5,000 on the lives of Mrs. Root and her daughter, relatives said.

Mrs. Jane Root said she married Root five years ago in Blue Island, a Chicago suburb, and that they never were divorced. She said he tried several times to end her life in automobiles, on one occasion steering his car over an embankment near Spencer, Ind. Each time she said, Root leaped from the car in time to escape but she suffered serious injuries in one accident.

Root deserted her a few months after their marriage, Mrs. Jane Root said, adding that she believed he had been married "at least several times since then without ever obtaining a divorce." She said he told her he had been married at least three times before he wed her and that one of the wives lived in Greencastle, Ind., under the name of Rootowski, his right but seldom used name.

Fatal Crash Near
Sterling In Night

Peter J. Aperi, 31, ex-service man, who resided with his mother south of Rock Falls, was instantly killed at 11:30 o'clock last night in an automobile collision on state route 40, about a mile north of Sterling, in which collision cars driven by Fred Landis, with whom Aperi was riding, and Charles Morris of Coleta were demolished.

Landis, the least seriously hurt of the two survivors of the crash, stated this morning that Morris was on the wrong side of the highway and was responsible for the fatal accident. The Coleta man is at the Sterling hospital suffering a fractured right arm, a broken nose and possible internal injuries.

RUSSIAN TROOPS
REPORTED MOVING
UP TO MANCHURIASoviet Government Is Said
To Be Watching
Jap Actions

Mukden, Manchuria, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency correspondent at Harbin said today that unconfirmed reports had come there of a movement of several thousand Soviet-Russian soldiers toward the Siberian frontier, presumably because of apprehension in connection with Japanese troop movements in north-eastern Manchuria.

At the same time it was learned here that General Jiro Toman's expedition against Chinese rebels in the vicinity of Impenpo had been delayed because of difficulties in obtaining transportation on the Chinese Eastern Railway. This railway is jointly owned and operated by Russia and China.

Travelers reaching Harbin from the frontier region reported unusual military activity along the whole line from Kharbarovsk to Vladivostok.

The new Manchurian federated state will be nominally a republic and Henry Pu-Yi, former "Boy Emperor" of China, will be its "provisional chief executive," the executive committee of the new state announced.

The young Pu-Yi had previously insisted that the state be set up as a monarchy and that he be given at least some vestige of the splendor of his ancestors, the former Manchurian emperors of China.

The executive committee added, however, in its outline of the new state constitution, that the name of the country and the title of its head would be carefully chosen to leave the way open for the establishment of a monarchy in the future if that seemed best.

Four States Seeking
Apportionment Order

Washington, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A determined effort is to be made to bring from the Supreme Court at its present term a ruling which will be controlling in determining reapportionment disputes in New York, Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri.

In each state there is a question whether joint action by the Governor and the legislature is necessary to make reapportionment legal or whether the legislature can act alone.

With general elections to be held in November and with state primaries to be held this spring, all parties to the controversy from Minnesota—where a reapportionment act vetoed by Governor Olson was held valid by the state Supreme Court—have joined in urging the court to fix a date for hearing the case in March.

This would enable a decision before the end of the present term, which, it is expected, would be broad enough to cover questions raised in all reapportionment disputes.

Calls Norris Bill
Unconstitutional

Washington, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Legislation to outlaw "yellow dog" contracts was said to be unconstitutional in the Senate today by Senator Herbert (R., R. I.), in offering a substitute for the Norris anti-injunction bill.

Herbert agreed with proponents of the Norris bill that abuses have resulted from the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes, but contended some provisions of the measure "would not stand the test of constitutionality, and therefore will result in a mere gesture."

He offered on behalf of a minority of the Judiciary committee a bill containing as a substitute to the Norris clause outlawing contracts under which employees must agree not to join labor unions, a proposal that merely would prevent issuance of injunctions in labor disputes wherever these "yellow dog" contracts were in effect.

Alleged Extortion
Plotter Is Sullen

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Frank Well, 16, sullen and defiant, was questioned by detectives today about a death threat note sent to Kail Karig, manufacturer, demanding $1,000. Well was arrested when he appeared at Karig's home and asked for the money.

He defied his questioners, giving an address where he was not known and refusing to explain or admit the ransom note, which threatened the lives of Karig's children, Herbert, 16, and Bertha, 13.

CAPITAL BABY BROWNS.
Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25.—(UP)—Harry B. Russell, 15 months old, was drowned in a small pool of water in the front yard of his home yesterday afternoon. The child, who had just learned to walk, is believed to have slipped into the water. Efforts at artificial resuscitation failed. An inquest will be held today.

War Summarized

By The Associated Press

The battle around Kiangwan seemed back and forth today as the early gains of the Japanese were wiped out in a surprise counter attack. At nightfall Kiangwan was still holding out.

Two or three divisions were expected at any time from Japan and there were some reports that part of the reinforcements already arrived. It was generally believed the full force of the Japanese army would be thrown into action early next week. The census was busy in Tokyo but from the news which did leak through it was obvious a major troop movement was in progress.

Japanese officials took issue with several points of Secretary Simpson's outline of American policy, asserting that Japan had done nothing to violate its treaty obligations and insisting that the only difference between American and Japanese policy toward China was a difference of methods.

Among the other neutral powers the reaction toward the Stimson statement was generally favorable.

The German Consulate near the Japanese Consulate in Hongkong was evacuated today on the strength of yesterday's warning that the vicinity would be dangerous for foreigners.

General Tamon, commanding the Japanese in Manchuria, was having rebel trouble again and his expedition to Impenpo was delayed because Russian officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway said Moscow had not instructed them to furnish transportation for Japanese troops. Travelers reaching Harbin from Siberia said there were important Russian troop movements along the border apparently because of apprehension regarding Japanese military activities in northeastern Manchuria.

TIRED AMERICAN SOLDIERS GIVEN
REST FROM DUTYRelieved Today After 15 Days At Mos.
Dangerous Post

BY JAMES P. HOWE

By The Associated Press

Shanghai, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Three hundred grimy-faced, unshaven and tired American soldiers of the 31st Infantry came out of the International Settlement defense lines this afternoon after fifteen days in front of shell-torn Chapel.

For the next few days the boys will figuratively hang up a "don't disturb" sign and hibernate. They began that program tonight when they rolled into their bunks.

The Americans were replaced in the most dangerous position within the Settlement lines by the Scottish Argyl and Sutherland "Laddies from Hell."

The Americans had earned their rest. The boys had come up only recently from Manila where tropical breezes blow unceasingly. Since their occupation of the danger zone they have been breathing biting winds within their sandbag barbed enclosures. Their position was most dangerous because they had the Chinese facing them and the Japanese on their right. As a result they saw plenty of action from within their lines.

Father And Sons
Guilty Of Fraud

Pittsburgh, Feb. 25.—(AP)—A father and his three sons, officers of the American Bond & Mortgage Co. of New York and Chicago, today were convicted of using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with sale of mortgage bonds of the Mayflower Hotel Corporation, Washington.

They are William J. Moore, the father, who was president of the company, and his sons, Harold A. Charles C. and Kenneth W. William J.'s brother, Charles B., was acquitted on a directed verdict.

Daniel J. O'Brien, also a defendant, was granted a separate trial. Dayden W. Ward, the seventh in a line of defendants, pleaded no defense at the opening of the trial. Counsel for the Moores said a new trial will be sought.

Governor Signs Act
To Pay Contractors

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Contractors who did work under the prevailing rate of wage law which later was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court will be paid $311,592.84 under the terms of a bill signed by Governor Louis L. Emmerson today.

The bill provides that money for payment of the contractors be appropriated from the state gasoline tax fund. All of the claims have been approved by the state Court of Claims and the legislature.

Governor Emmerson also signed Senator Francis Loughran's bill providing that the interest from funds may be used for the purchase and preservation of liens.

DRIVE JAPS OUT OF KIANGWAN IN BLOODY FIGHTINGJapanese Apparently Must Await More Troops
To Gain Ground

BULLETIN

Shanghai, Friday, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The rolling thunder of heavy guns crashed on the Chapel front early this morning as the Chinese, victorious in yesterday's terrific engagement in the Kiangwan sector, bombarded the enemy base in Hongkong Park.

Shells dropped along the northern boundary of the International Settlement, new pillars of smoke and flames rose from the ruins of Chapel and the Japanese answering fire made the morning a pandemonium.

The fighting appeared to have shifted from the Kiangwan sector where the Japanese made considerable advances yesterday (Thursday) but lost much of the ground they had gained when the Chinese, apparently reinforced by fresh men from Chiang Kai-Shek's 88th division, launched a counter attack which won back nearly everything the Japanese had taken in their attacks.

All through the night and early this morning a strong wind carried to Shanghai the sound of machine gun and rifle fire at intervals on the Kiangwan front. The Chinese, holding that village against the full power of the enemy, were still hanging on.

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS
Associate Press Staff Correspondent
Shanghai, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Hammered all day long by a terrific Japanese bombardment, the Chinese army in the Kiangwan sector, swarming out of its trenches tonight, launching a surprising counter-attack, and won back nearly all the ground it had lost during the day.

In the afternoon the Japanese threw their full force on the handful of defenders northwest of Kiangwan village, beat back the Chinese first line and drove it into a disorderly retreat.

The attack swept forward around the village, ripped through the line and virtually surrounded the Kiangwan garrison. The artillery pounded the Chinese second line and a fleet of forty Japanese planes rained 250 pound bombs on the defenses.

Then the attack halted for a time while the heavy guns continued their withering fire on the Chinese rear.

Counter-Attack Surprise
The counter-attack appeared to have taken the Japanese by surprise for it carried the Chinese back across the shell-torn ground and tonight Kiangwan was still in their hands.

There were reports that two to three Japanese divisions were due tomorrow or Saturday and that a big Japanese drive would begin early next week.

Despatches from Tokyo disclosing that the Emperor had talked with General Yoshinori Shikawa was taken here to mean that he would supersede Kenkichi Ueyda in command of the Army at Shanghai.

The Japanese had swept forward in an encircling movement around Kiangwan village, tore a gap in the Chinese line and pressed forward toward Tachang. The little Spartan force of Chinese defending Kiangwan village continued to cling to their posts, however, and were virtually surrounded as the Japanese drive pressed on west of them.

The big guns poured a crushing fire on the Chinese while the infantry advanced. Fighting desperately, the Japanese took Miao-chungchen, northwest of Kiangwan and continued their wheeling drive from there. The entire area was covered with smoke which made it almost impossible to determine the details of what was going on.

Claimed First Line
As the afternoon wore on the Japanese claimed they had occupied the Chinese first line defenses northwest of Kiang

Lawyer Says Ruth

Refused To Settle

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—A lawyer who says Ruth Hanna McCormick owes him $50,000 for attempts to discredit her opponent in the 1930 Illinois senatorial race—former Senator Charles S. Deneen—has offered letters from two U. S. Senators as supposed proof of his claims.

The letters, which he presented in court yesterday and said were from Senators William E. Borah of Idaho and James Blaine of Wisconsin, however, refused to sponsor an investigation of Deneen's activities before the 1930 primary, which he said he asked in Mrs. McCormick's behalf.

The lawyer, Carol Gigliotti, took stand as his $50,000 suit against Mrs. McCormick for alleged breach of verbal contract opened. Mrs. McCormick defeated Deneen to win the Republican nomination but lost the election to Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat. Gigliotti asserts Mrs. McCormick hired him and then refused to pay.

Hoover Acquiesces
To Adamant House

Washington, Feb. 25—(AP)—President Hoover has acquiesced pleasantly to the democratic determination that Congress shall do the economy reorganizing of government activities, but he sticks to the belief that he could do it better.
In a formal statement at office-closing time yesterday, the Chief Executive expressed delight that Congress was getting active about the subject, but pointed out that for 25 years it had been trying to do some effective reorganizing without success, always running up against too great opposition.

It is because of past failures, he said, that he continues to believe the power of reorganization should be lodged with the President. This the Democratic-controlled House has refused flatly to do. Mr. Hoover made no mention whatever of Speaker Garner's sharply critical statement last Sunday refusing to give blanket authority to Mr. Hoover.

Quash Indictment
Against Mrs. Kegel

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher in Criminal Court today quashed indictments charging Mrs. Marie Kegel, estranged wife of the former City Health Commissioner, and Gerald I. Lee with the attempted murder of a former maid in the Kegels home.
Judge Fisher said he quashed the indictments on his own initiative after receiving a message from the grand jury that it had voted the true bills through a "misconception of the facts."

Mrs. Kegel and Lee, a grocer's clerk, were indicted on the basis of statements of Mrs. Mary Ryan, the former domestic who is ill of poisoning.

Lee subsequently charged that his alleged confession was forced from him by third degree methods, and the grand jury recalled him and other witnesses for further inquiry.

Says Public Still Believes In Magic

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—The public, says President Harry Woodburn Chase of the University of Illinois, believes Congress can change fundamental laws of supply and demand because it still believes in magic.

He told an audience of engineers last night that research in the public mind is on a level with clever tricks of conjuring—like pulling rabbits out of hats.

Arms Conference Is Against Russian Plan

Geneva, Feb. 25—(AP)—The world disarmament conference today voted down Russia's proposal for immediate total and universal disarmament throughout the entire world.

The proposal was presented by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, at the opening of today's session. When the vote was taken, only Turkey and Russia supported the proposal.

"The special interests of the munition workers and makers," Litvinoff said, "are stronger than the pacifist groups. Civilization would not suffer much if all the fighting in the Far East were done with bare fists."

Cardozo Approved
By Senate Last Eve

Washington, Feb. 25—(AP)—The expected unanimous approval of the nomination of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court was given by the Senate without any more than the bang of the gavel.

It took ten seconds at the close of yesterday's session to ratify President Hoover's choice of a successor to the venerable Oliver W. Holmes, who retired under the weight of great age.

Justice Cardozo is not expected to take his place on the highest bench until March 14.

Darrow May Defend
Honolulu Slayers

Honolulu, Feb. 25—(AP)—A possibility that Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, may come to Honolulu to defend Mrs. Granville Fortescue, society matron, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., her son-in-law, and two naval men charged with lynching a Hawaiian, may result in changing the order of trial of this city's two most widely known criminal cases.

The Chicago attorney has been offered the case and is reported to be considering it favorably. Dispatches from New York said both Darrow and Dudley Field Malone, a New York attorney, have been invited to join the defense.

St. Louis Kidnaping
Case Ended Mistrial

St. Louis, Feb. 25—(UP)—Paul A. Richards, young lawyer whose 10 day trial on kidnaping charges ended in a hung jury, was in jail today awaiting a new trial.

Richards, who the state claimed represented the kidnapers of Alexander Berg, wealthy furrier in St. Louis, was discharged after more than 24 hours deliberation. The jury had stood seven to five for acquittal since the third ballot.

Loan Associations
Can Pledge Assets

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 25—(AP)—Illinois building and loan associations may pledge their assets for the purpose of securing a loan, State Auditor Oscar Nelson was advised today by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

Under the ruling, the way is opened for many building and loan associations organized under Illinois laws to pledge their assets to secure the repayment of advances from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the newly-organized government loan agency which is authorized to make loans to such associations.

The law, Carlstrom held, expressly authorizes associations to borrow money subject to certain terms and conditions. The right to borrow money for the uses and purposes of the association as the business may demand and as are not inconsistent with the objects, charter and by-laws of the corporation, the opinion went on, would implicitly give the association the power to pledge its securities for repayment.

The Building and Loan Division of the Auditor's office, which is headed by Carl H. Weber, is receiving numerous inquiries as to the right of associations to pledge their assets to secure repayment of advances from the new Reconstruction Corporation.

Edison Drops Fight
On Father's Will

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 25—(UP)—William L. Edison, eldest son of the late inventor, Thomas A. Edison, has dropped all action against the Edison will which disposed of a $12,000,000 fortune, he told the United Press today.

"The dispute over disposal of the property has been amicably settled with my brothers and sisters," Edison said, "and everybody is happy. I do not care to discuss the terms."

William Edison, himself an inventor, returned to his Wilmington home today from a vacation trip in the Bahamas Islands.

Landis Rules Cards'
III Deal Is Illegal

Chicago, Feb. 25—(UP)—Kenesaw M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, has ruled that an exclusive optional player agreement between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Springfield, Ill., Three-Eagle League team, is "utterly illegal."

By the agreement the Cardinals would have paid $2500 for the right to select any player it wanted from the Springfield club's active list during the 1932 season.

CRIME INCREASE IN CHICAGO LAID TO DEPRESSION

Gangsters And Dry Law
Absolved Says Alexander Jamie

Washington, Feb. 25—(UP)—Robert Isham Randolph, head of Chicago's celebrated "Secret Six," crime prevention organization, and representatives of similar associations in St. Louis, appealed to Congress today for legislation to combat the racketeer.

Randolph and Walter Weisenberger, President of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce related to a startled and attentive committee details of scores of crimes involving sudden death, kidnaping, torture and extortion.

Chicago, Feb. 25—(UP)—Al Capone, public enemy No. 1, and most of his men are in jail, but crime is increasing in Chicago.

But Alexander Jamie, noted criminologist and chief investigator for the Secret Six, said today gangsters and the prohibition law are not to blame "for the most surprising increase in crime we have ever had to face."

Economic conditions have brought the new crime wave, Jamie added, and until the depression lifts there is little hope for improvement.

Manslaughter, kidnaping, burglary and robbery have all increased. Actual murder shows a slight decrease. During the three months preceding incarceration of "Scarface Al" last October, there were only three major cases of kidnaping. During the same period since then, there were 11 cases.

The three months following Capone's entry into a cell showed 58 manslaughter cases against 47 for the previous corresponding period. There were 6,230 burglaries the last three months of 1931 against 5,298 the preceding quarter and 4,603 robberies against 3,534.

Establish New Reasons
"Entirely new reasons must be established for the increased crime during the past few months," asserted Jamie. "We cannot blame it on gangsters and the prohibition law this time. Most of our leading hoodlums are now in jail or in such a position with the law enforcing units that they prefer to remain within bounds of the law."

"It is most surprising to me that there is an increase in crime. I was under the impression all crime statistics would reveal a drastic reduction. No doubt the added numbers comprise many petty thieves."

"Crimes of magnitude have been remarkably small. The mild winter also had a marked effect on larger crimes."

Jamie said prohibition did not figure in the crime situation because of a heavy reduction in manufacture and importation.

Liquor Sales Drop

Finance Corporation
Loaned $24,440,701

Washington, Feb. 25—(AP)—An additional $20,603,140 in cash was drawn from the Treasury on February 23 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The requisition brought the total spent by the Corporation since its organization to $24,440,701. While it is against the policy of the Reconstruction Corporation to make public information regarding its loans, two of the largest that have been disclosed thus far were to the Wabash and Missouri Pacific Railroads.

Program for Club Saturday Afternoon

In keeping with the spirit of the Bi-Centennial celebration in honor of George Washington, the Literature and Library Extension Department of the Dixon Woman's Club of which Mrs. A. C. Bowers is the chairman, has planned the following program for Saturday afternoon.

Presentation of a Flag—by the W. R. C.

National Anthem—
A debate, under the direction of M. C. Selander, instructor in the history department of the high school.

The subject to be "Resolved that the system of the Board and Commissions created by the Federal Government is a Detriment to the American people."

The affirmative—Anne Davies, Jack Habacker and Graydon Moll. Negative—Paul Peterson, Lowell Whitebread and Tom Mosher.

Louise Warner will act as chairperson of the debate.

This attractive program merits a good attendance of club members. All meetings are open to the public upon payment of a small guest fee.

First Lady Starts On Vacation Trip

Charleson, S. C., Feb. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover made John Trumbull's famous portrait of George Washington, painted in 1791, the first stop of a sight-seeing trip today upon her arrival here on a vacation trip to the south. The painting is owned by the city.

The President's wife arrived with a group of friends on an overnight train from Washington. She was greeted at the railway station by city officials and immediately expressed a desire to see the Washington portrait.

After the visit to the city hall, Mrs. Hoover left for Magnolia and Middleton Place Gardens. In her party are Mrs. Edgar Rickard, New York; Mrs. Mark McMillan, California; Mrs. Mark Sullivan, Washington; Captain Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, and Mrs. Boone.

Later in the day they will board the Sequoia, a motor ship owned by the Department of Commerce, and go to Miami, Fla.

Women Voters Watch Fate of Senate Bill 2687

The Illinois League of Women Voters is watching with interest the fate of Senate Bill 2687, introduced by Senator Robert H. Wagner of New York, that would provide for the establishment of a national employment system to cooperate with the states in the promotion of an effective employment service. This bill which has been referred to the Committee on Commerce, has been recommended for support by the National League as a part of its program to aid in the creation of an established system for Federal, state, and local unemployment relief.

Should this bill be successful of passage, the present United States Employment Service would be abolished within three months after the new service comes into existence. As a part of the Department of Labor with its employees appointed under civil service regulations—the new bureau would set up a national system of employment offices for men, women and juniors. It would maintain a farm placement service, and cooperate with the veteran's administration in securing employment for veterans. It would assist in the establishment and maintenance of public employment offices in the states and their subdivisions. It would also aid in coordinating public employment offices by distributing information as to opportunities for employment and by maintaining a system for clearing labor between the states.

An appropriation of $1,500,000 is provided in the bill for the year ending June 30, 1933, and $4,000,000 is authorized annually for four years thereafter. Seventy-five per cent of each appropriation is to be divided among the states in proportion to population, provided each state gives a sum equal to the Federal fund apportioned for the purpose of maintaining a state-controlled system of public employment offices. The other twenty-five per cent of the appropriation is to be expended in carrying out the functions assigned to the Federal service.

From this brief resume, it is obvious that the Employment Service which the Wagner bill seeks would be supplementary in its functions to the various state employment systems. It makes adequate provision for the consideration of the needs of women workers in the administration of the service, and is receiving the support of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Committee on Women in Industry of which Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll, is chairman.

At the present time, the Illinois State Employment service, has established free employment offices in a number of cities, including Chicago, Decatur, Moline, Rock Island, Rockford and others. It is generally recognized, however, that this service should be strengthened to meet the needs of the present situation.

Practical Club and Guests Entertained

The members of the Practical Club and seven guests were delightfully entertained at a one o'clock luncheon on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. I. B. Potter with Mrs. Harold Gray assisting hostess.

The decorations and luncheon were in keeping with Washington's birthday. The tables were decorated with flags and candles and cut flowers in the national colors. The favors were small hatchets. After the delicious three course luncheon a very interesting program was given.

The topic for the afternoon was "Representative Women," Mrs. W. H. Ware giving the history of the lives of Jane Adams, Helen Keller, Madame Schumann Heink, Mary Wooley, Grace Abbott and Dr. Florence Rena Sabin.

Mrs. Homer Senneff then gave the history of six more women being Grace Coolidge, Carrie Chapman Catt, Martha Berry, Willa Cather, Minnie Fiske, Cecelia Beaux.

There were very interesting and well given. Mabel Louis Potter and Evelyn Worsley played several piano numbers closing the delightful afternoon.

Washington Honored By Amboy W. R. C.

The Amboy W. R. C. held a regular meeting Friday with a good attendance. In the evening they gave a program in honor of Washington's 200th birthday.

Rev. Edwards talked on Lincoln and Mr. Taubeneck talked on the "Life of Washington."

Several selections were rendered by the Congregational orchestra which were greatly enjoyed.

Lincoln was impersonated by Anna Wickey, Mrs. Lincoln by Minnie Hanna; Washington by Mary Baker; and Mrs. Washington by Nettie Virgil. The program which was excellent was much enjoyed by all. It closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Stars and Stripes Forever in These Patriotic Costumes

Early spring accessories celebrate the George Washington bi-centennial. Left: A snappy trio of chic is made up of sports hat, pouch bag and belt of the starry striped design of one of the new early American silks. Center: A dark dress takes on light and life with a bow scarf, and turban of a Betty Ross red, white and blue print. Right: To accent spring on a dark suit there is a scarf of multi-colored sampler design, with a border of plain red and white.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

by ALICIA HART

YOUR NAILS HAVE TO BE ON THEIR METAL!!

Some evening when you want to be more enchanting than usual, try the new silver and gold polish.

Especially if you have platinum blonde hair, the platinum polish on your nails seems highly appropriate.

Also if you are using the metallic eye shadow, metallic finger nails finish you up with a shine.

The way you use this best is to give just the tips of your nails this added gleam. First they are manicured as you usually have them, perhaps leaving them just a little longer than you had them this winter. Then you use the platinum polish to touch up the tips of the nails, the part that is white at the top of the finger.

You can have the polish renewed without having another manicure, or you can take it off without too much damage to your hands. It is just a little something extra. But it should be reserved for evening.

There is something disfiguring in wearing such an obvious "extra" during the daytime. Just a little bit like wearing an evening dress to the office.

If you are feeling the depression and don't feel equal to having your usual weekly manicure, save your pennies and get at least one a month. In the interim, manicure your own hands. It may be awkward at first, but with practice you can even make that left hand of yours do yeoman service.

Red nail polish is still worn by some women, but a more restrained tint is considered better taste this spring.

There are a few little tricks that you may know, but just in case you don't:

1. Every time you wash your hands, push back the cuticle on every single finger. This makes permanent half-moons in time on most hands.

2. For as little as ten cents you now can buy a finger nail pencil which keeps the tips white underneath. Dip the point in water and run it around under each in turn.

Bott-Johnson Wedding Tuesday

Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage of the Bethel U. E. church, Rev. Paul D. Gordon officiated at the wedding of Miss Freda M. Bott and Bert W. Johnson, both of this city.

Charles Bott, father of the bride and Miss Esther Slater were attendants at the wedding. The ring ceremony was used.

Mr. Johnson is an employee of the Reynolds Wire Co.

Many friends extend congratulations and best wishes to this happy couple. They expect to make their home in Dixon.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

All over the United States trees are being planted to commemorate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington and in almost all cases school children are actively interested in the work.

In Bennington, Vermont, five miles of English elms are being set out this year in honor of the memory of the Father of Our Country.

The Southland, perfect at this time of year for tree planting is very busy. Six hundred high school pupils in Jacksonville, Fla., have set out one thousand forest trees along a country highway. Other school children in other sections are not only cooperating in the purchase of young saplings, but are actually engaged in planting them by the thousands.

Many of the states are furnishing the memorial plates or tags free of charge and are helping in other ways with the work in this "February until Thanksgiving" festival.

A Fitting Memorial
Could anything be more fitting or magnificent than this tree-planting program? George Washington was a great lover of trees and some of the monarchs at Mount Vernon still stand that were there when the soldier and statesman had turned his sword to a plowshare and retired to spend his declining years on his Virginia estate.

As spring approaches our northern territories, great plans are under way for similar memorials. As in Vermont, many communities have already begun the work. The American Tree Association is going to have a busy summer, I am very sure.

I have been thinking that one good way to commemorate Washington's birthday on February 22 in schools is to tell the children about his ability as a naturalist, as well as that of a soldier and a true statesman.

Have you ever been to Mount Vernon where George and Martha Washington are buried? They are not buried really, but lie in open tombs in simple stone sarcophagi where the shade of forest trees falls over them. If they were alive they could stand and gaze down a gently sloping hillside to the beautiful Potomac they both loved so well.

A Lover of the Land
Washington loved the land and everything it bore. Recently we drove through Fredericksburg, Va., near where he was born, and many of the old trees under which he played as a boy are still there in the grand old town.

As a very young man he was sent on a hazardous errand to the commander of the English forces west of the Pennsylvania Mountains. Also as a surveyor he went out into that wilderness. That took courage. If you have crossed those mountains on a nice smooth, paved highway, have you ever tried to conceive what it meant to blaze trails through virgin forests, and wilderness thick with Indians and where to be lost meant absolute death?

At any rate, it is a fitting gesture to commemorate his birth by planting trees and it won't be long now until spring.

Celebration Mixes Brains and Beauty

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 25—(AP)—Aurora's celebration of "Leap Year Day", February 29, is going to be a matter of brains and beauty.

Brains because Miss Mildred Pratt, selected as mayor is intelligent enough to be president of the Aurora Business and Professional Women's Club and good looking enough to be the town's most popular municipal employee.

Two other women with reputations for good looks were given other city jobs. Ella Larson, manager of a hotel, was named Chief of Police and Charlotte Daniels, a home girl, was selected as head of the Fire Department.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

In considering the question of giving independence to the Philippines, it is essential that we put ourselves straight on the facts before we start arguing.

The origins of this knotty little problem often seem obscure, and it is easy to get confused about them. A little examination of the record of history would make many of the current arguments more valuable.

Secretary of War Hurley, appearing before a Senate committee the other day, made the following remark about the independence issue:

"I believe the responsibilities assumed by the United States when it destroyed the sovereignty of Spain have not been fulfilled, and that the independence of the Philippines should be given when certain conditions have been performed which assure the stability of the government when it is established."

It is the first clause of that remark that deserves a little thought. What are those responsibilities? More important, how did we happen to assume them?

We took the Philippines by force, and we took them because somebody at Washington decided that it would be nice if we had some island possessions in the Orient. We were fighting Spain—ostensibly, anyhow—to free Cuba, and the exact way in which kicking the Spaniard out of the Philippines helped to set the Cubans free is something no one has ever explained satisfactorily.

The Filipinos didn't want us at the time. We had no business going near them, once Dewey had sunk the Spanish Asiatic fleet. In order to possess the islands we had to fight the native inhabitants a lot harder than we had to fight the Spaniards. And after gaining possession, we promised solemnly that we would give them their independence.

Remembering those facts ought to clear things up a bit. It would remind us that our "responsibilities" are things that we shouldered of our own accord, over the objection of everybody concerned; and chief among them would seem to be the responsibility for making the Filipinos independent.

PASSENGER PARACHUTES?

A bill was introduced in Congress the other day which would require all air transport lines to provide parachutes for every passenger, much as steamship lines are required to provide life-preservers; and, as might be expected, it has stirred up a good deal of argument on both sides.

In theory, perhaps, the idea is a good one. Any transport company certainly is under a moral obligation to do everything it can to ensure the safety of its patrons. But, as officials of the transport companies have been pointing out, there are plenty of obstacles in the way of this measure.

In most airplane crashes there would not be time for all the passengers to jump to safety even if they did have parachutes. Novices might operate their chutes correctly, if they did manage to jump in time, and they might not. Besides, the expense of providing parachutes for everybody would put most air transport companies out of business.

A NEW "OBSCENITY" BILL.

The New York legislature is considering a new "obscenity statute" which looks as if it would make an excellent law. It would put the responsibility for the sale of an obscene book on the publisher instead of on the retailer, as is the case now; and it would not only free book-sellers from the harassings of official and unofficial snoopers, but would probably prove a more effective weapon against improper publications than the present law.

The book-seller has to take many of his books on faith. There are 10,000 or more printed annually; how can he go through them all? In many cases he decides to play safe whenever any small group protests the sale of a book—and thus makes possible an unofficial but highly effective censorship.

The new law would put it entirely up to the publisher, and would compel him to stand back of every book he issued. The arrangement would be more logical and more effective.

HINDENBURG CONQUERS RUSSIA WHERE NAPOLEON FAILED

Old Soldier's Smashing Drives On The Eastern Front Cost Czar Half a Million Men and Finally Drove Russia From the World War

By MILTON BRONNER

Berlin —(NEA Service)— In the gray light of an early morning in the latter part of August, 1914, an old gentleman in civilian attire nervously paced up and down the railway platform at Hanover, accompanied by a solicitous old lady. It was Paul von Hindenburg, and his wife, waiting for the special train which was speeding from the west front in Belgium, bearing General Erich Ludendorff, who was to be his chief-of-staff.

The two men had never met. All that Ludendorff knew about Hindenburg was that he had attained high rank, had retired, had reached the age of 67 but was, nevertheless, reported to have sharp wits and considerable military ability. It is doubtful if Hindenburg knew that much about Ludendorff.

German military headquarters was greatly displeased with Colonel-General von Prittwitz, who was in command in the east and who was claiming that he must withdraw his troops beyond the Vistula. This would mean giving up most of East Prussia to the Russians, and if the Germans were then beaten, would open the way for the Russian steam roller to go crashing towards Berlin.

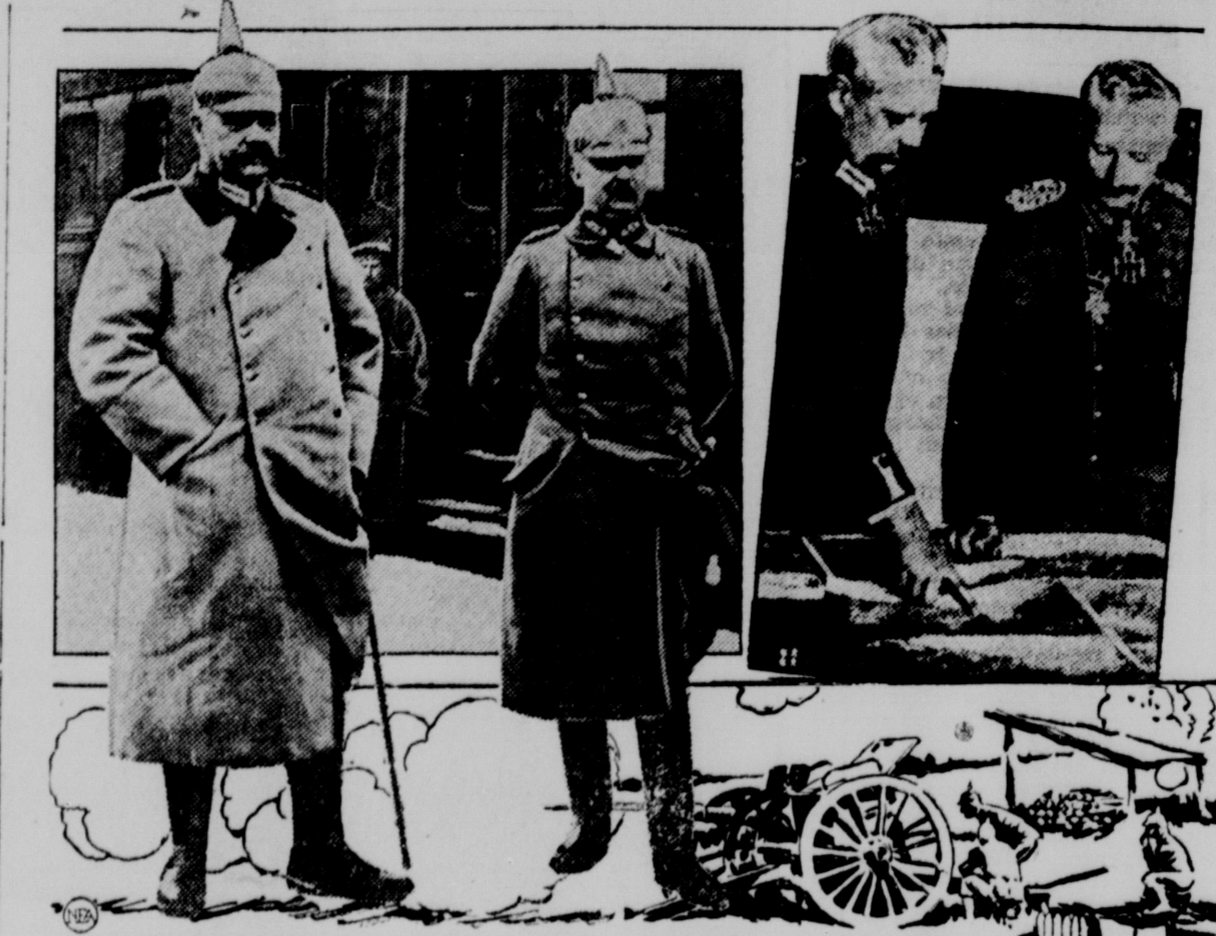

Then somebody at G. H. Q., remembered Old Hindenburg; that he was an East Prussian and had formerly been stationed at Königsberg, as that he was probably well acquainted with the terrain. Ludendorff was also an East Prussian. It would be a good scheme to send the older man as general and the younger man as strategist. So said, so done.

When Ludendorff's special train drew in, he stepped down, saluted and shook hands. It was the first time the famous pair had ever met. They quickly boarded their train and started off in haste for Königsberg.

The German situation was serious enough. Their army had General Rennenkampf, with a huge Russian army on one side, and General Samsonoff, with another army further south. Maybe Hindenburg knew something about the hatred between the two Russian commanders, which had begun in the Russo-Japanese war. Whatever it was, he determined to put his fortunes to the test.

He withdrew most of the troops facing Rennenkampf, leaving only a slight screen. He concentrated all the troops he could secure in an endeavor to draw Samsonoff into a trap. It succeeded.

The Russian army was almost annihilated. Ninety thousand prisoners were taken. Samsonoff shot himself on the battlefield which old Hindenburg named Tannenberg. His ancestors had suffered here nearly 500 years before. Joy bells were run all over East Prussia. Germany, as a whole, head of this old dug-out for the first time. Small fortunes were made selling his pictures.

Hindenburg now went hot-foot after Rennenkampf's army, which narrowly escaped a trap and got out of German territory. By mid-September East Prussia was cleared of Russians.

But, as a whole, things were not going well for the Central Powers. The Allies had more than held their own in the west. They had won the battle of the Marne. In the east, the Russians were in Galicia and were threatening Hungary.

Hindenburg was made commander-in-chief of the armies of the east. As such, he wanted to make an offensive towards Warsaw, but his plans were limited by the timid Falkenhayn, then generalissimo of the German forces. Notwithstanding that, he did lead his armies near to Warsaw and was then compelled to fall back because of Austrian defeats.

Then Hindenburg turned about and captured Lodz in Poland.

The Grand Duke Nicholas, chief of the Russian armies, had lost 250,000 men in six weeks and winter was coming on.

Nevertheless, in response to the call of the Allies in the west, he prepared another grandiose plan, involving millions of men. One huge army was to force its way through snowy passes of the Carpathians into the wheat plains of Hungary—the breadbasket of the Central Powers. At the same time, another big army was to invade East Prussia. Hindenburg himself took charge of the troops in East Prussia and in February was fought the second battle of the Masurian lakes, resulting in 110,000 Russians being captured.

Hindenburg believed, if given the troops he could put Russia out of action completely in 1915, compel Russia to sue for peace and thus give Germany opportunity to concentrate all her troops on the western front in the end.

But Falkenhayn did not believe Russia could be conquered. Napoleon had tried and failed. So Hindenburg never got all the troops he wanted. He had beaten the Russians nearly every time, but the Russian armies were still gigantic, still full of fighting spirit.

But Paul von Hindenburg drove on.

Libau, Mitau, Lemberg, were all captured. Novo Georgievsk, with a huge garrison of 100,000 men, fell. Then Warsaw was taken, and then Grodno. In six weeks the Russian front had receded 150 miles.

Grand Duke Nicholas was removed and the czar himself, assumed supreme command. Once more the Germans moved, particularly in the north. Riga, Kovno and Vilna were occupied, and by the late summer of 1915, the Russians began to think of defending Petrograd from capture.

But in his main object, Hindenburg had failed. His attempt to encircle the main Russian army had not come off. The Russian front remained unbroken. Whatever the enthusiastic German populace might think, Hindenburg knew Russia still had plenty of soldiers, some very good generals, and her food plains were unoccupied.

In 1916 Russia began to move again. Her armies effected little against the Germans, but in the south, under Brusiloff, the Russians smashed the Austrian Fourth Corps, reached the Carpathians and saw the Austrians in Bukovina run away.

But Russia's strength was broken, as events were soon to prove when she sued for peace. History was to show that Hindenburg, then nearly 70, had succeeded, where Napoleon failed, in conquering the lands of the czars.

Then things came to a standstill, but the Allies scored by bringing Rumania with a million men into the war. In the meantime, Falkenhayn denied further troops to Hindenburg. He needed them all for the luckless and savage attack on Verdun, where the flower of the German army perished in a futile effort to crush the French.

By July, 1916, the Kaiser and his flatterers came to a sense of realities. Accompanied by Falkenhayn and others, they came to the castle of Pless in Upper Silesia. Hindenburg and Ludendorff were sent for.

Falkenhayn resigned and Hindenburg was made commander-in-chief of all the armies, with Ludendorff as his quartermaster general.

The new chief at once decided there must be no more Verduns. The German armies on the west time being. The first business in hand was to attend to those Rumanians. Joint armies of Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians and Turks were set in motion and in a swift and ruthless campaign the Rumanian army was put out of business.

Hindenburg could now pay some attention to the west. He might well have said to his Kaiser what Poch said to Clemenceau: "You give me supreme command in a lost battle and ask me to be happy about it."

Everywhere the Germans had performed prodigies in arms, but the British and French armies were themselves performing heroic miracles and the Russians still gave signs of fighting strength. England's rip on the sea had tightened and her blockade of Germany had made the people of the Kaiser feel the bitter pangs of hunger.

TOMORROW: The new commander-in-chief of all Germany's armies takes charge on the heels of starving Germany's terrible "turnip winter" in 1916. The Allies are halted and the great German drive of March, 1918, brings their darkest day in the world war. American doughboys at the Marne, and the turn of the tide, from bad to worse, and the ashes of November, an old hero retires for the second time.

and Soviet Russia. Harbin is 340 miles north of Mukden, the Manchurian capital, and it stands where the east-west main line, from Europe and from the Pacific, meets the southward extension to Dairen and the Gulf of Chihli. It is one of the most important railroad junctions in the Far East.

"Although Harbin lies about 200 miles from the nearest border line of Siberia, in territory that has long been part of China, it is almost as Russian as it is Chinese," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Built By Railroads
"In fact, the Russians really put Harbin on the map. Up to the latter part of the '90s, the site of Harbin was a wild desolate region, with a few fishermen's huts along the Sungari river marking the only human habitation. Then in 1896 Russian builders of the Trans-Siberian railroad, seeking a short cut to Vladivostok, on the Pacific, obtained a treaty from China which made a line across northern Manchuria possible.

"Harbin, however, was only a flag-stop until Chinese interests, saw the advantages of an extension southward through central Manchuria. Harbin was chosen as the junction point, the crossing of a giant 'T' whose top bar is 1,090 miles long, and whose base stretches 588 miles to Dairen. Manchuria's railroad T, stand, they say, for trouble, and Harbin has had its share of uprisings—notably during the Russo-Japanese War, and in 1926 and 1929.

"The close relationship between Harbin and the Chinese Eastern Railroad did not end with the creation of the town along its lines. Until the World War much of the town was on railroad-leased property, hence jointly under the jurisdiction of both Chinese and Russians. Even the telephones of the city were operated by the 'Telephone Department' of the railway, and the company also maintained the Greek Catholic Church and the city's largest hospital. It also issued a newspaper in Russian and another in Chinese. Since the World War, the company's civic activities have been curtailed, but the railroad still is the most important factor in the economic life of the city.

City of Four Parts
"The Chinese Eastern Railroad main line divides the new town from the wharf district of Harbin. On the New Town side, the traveler alights at a fine central station which many American cities would be proud to have. Radiating streets lined with stone buildings, and with gardens and trees, give this part of Harbin the appearance of a European town. In the wharf district, or 'Pristan', gay-colored signs in traveler's eye, and carts, droskies and loaded donkeys struggle through mud and rain on the upraised streets. During the summer months long lines of coolies load river steamers with flour and soy beans from Harbin's busy docks.

"Old Harbin, two miles east of the Sungari River, grew up before the railway into southern Manchuria was projected. It was the business center while the railway and the new town were being built, but it is today merely a small suburb on the line to Vladivostok. Downstream from Pristan, and outside the railroad leased land, is the Chinese town, called Fu-chai-tien. The four communities have an aggregate population of about 250,000.

"Harbin boasts a few good hotels, both Russian and Japanese, but the visitor is impressed with large built-up houses where one may take a Russian bath in first, second, or third class compartments. Unless the English-speaking traveler can talk Russian, Chinese, or Japanese he has difficulty making his wishes known.

"In recent years wheat grown in the adjoining prairie country has made Harbin a great grain market."

Harbin, Second City in Manchuria, Is Held By Japan

Washington, D. C. — Harbin, last important Manchurian city to fall into the hands of Japanese forces, is the second largest city in Manchuria and the operating headquarters of the Chinese Eastern Railway, jointly controlled by China

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The big umbrella swooped real fast and Scouty said, "This will not last so very long. I am sure that we are going to hit the ground. If this was rubber it would be well because when we landed right back into the air we'd surely bound." Just then they sighted Old Man Blow and Windy shouted loudly, "Ho! Please come and save us from our fall. We are frightened as can be. Unless you do, with one big thud, we are going to land right in some mud. And then, what will become of us? Oh, goodness, gracious me!"

Said Old Man Blow, "Who touched the spring and consequently closed that thing? I told you all to sit real still. It seems you don't obey. However, youngsters, I will try to send you back up in the sky. If I succeed in doing it, this is your lucky day."

He then dived down and blew real strong, but promptly found he wasn't strong enough to make the big umbrella spread and open wide. The Tynmites shouted "Blow some more! Please try and make a wild wind roar." Then Duncy started everyone. Here comes a bird," he cried.

"Why, it is a sappy-day bird. Gee! You are fortunate as you can be," said Old Man Blow. "I think that bird will glay help you out." And then the old man cried, "Come here and bring these Tynmites some cheer. Please grab their big umbrella and then turn the thing about."

The bird dived down and, what a thrill it was to see its great big bill shot up in the air. The strange umbrella opened quick and Scouty shouted, "That was slick! We are floating very safely now, which ends an awful scare."

(Scouty has a very smart idea in the next story.)

ASHTON NEWS

By E. Tilton

Ashton—Attendance in the primary room of the Ashton school has been cut about in half because of measles. A recent case of the disease occurred in the primary room. The children who had not had the malady were permitted to continue school for a week following, but were excluded to prevent further spread of the malady. Many have since developed the ailment.

John Charters was among a group who attended a meeting of the Masonic order in Elgin last week.

Donald Bork accompanied the Rochelle Agriculture Team which competed in the stock judging event at Stockton on Saturday afternoon.

Bert Reed who has been unable to be about for several weeks shows some improvement. Flu with other complications has kept him at home.

E. Nelson of Rockford, a cousin of Nels Nelson of Ashton, was a guest of his relatives over the week end.

Mrs. Everett Hardesty is taking treatments from a Dixon physician. George Fruin of Dixon uncle of Leland Tilton, has filed his petition as alternate delegate on the Democratic ticket for Lee County.

Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Grover were hosts to their daughter, Mrs. Nels Nelson and daughters and cousin E. Nelson on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Grover were guests of Mrs. Grover's aunt, Mrs. Isaac Canfield of Chana on Sunday.

J. B. Canfield and sister, Miss Blanch, former president of Pine Rock Woman's club with their sister, Mrs. Cleaver of Lighthouse, motored to Missouri during the week to attend the golden wedding anniversary of relatives.

Stumbling as he swung a crow bar in releasing a number of fence posts, he was unloading from a wagon Leland Tilton, crushed his foot so badly that he will be unable to be out for several days.

The Charles Merritt family have moved into the Elva Worthington house.

A committee interviewing depositors of the Chana bank met with almost unanimous consent to forego any hoarding of deposited money.

The Malta basketball team was easily defeated by the Ashton boys Friday evening. Stillman Valley at Rochelle will be the opponents of the cagers Friday evening.

Much of the equipment of James Clark, local baker, was removed from the first floor of the building when fire broke out at 10:30 Saturday evening. However, prompt and efficient work on the part of the fire department, soon had the blaze under control.

Mrs. Nettie Sudbury will be hostess to the Grove Card Club Saturday evening. Kenneth Hogan won high score in the games last Saturday.

John Drummond who has been seriously ill with flu and complications of heart trouble is now improving. His daughter, Miss Mable Drummond R. N. of Rockford has been assisting in his care. Mrs. Susan Williams, mother of Mrs. J. Drummond is also a victim of the flu.

At the Guy Linscott home three members are ill, the small daughter came down with the measles early in the week.

Mrs. Henry Neumon is hostess to the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church on Thursday. Assisting here are Mrs. George Stephan and Mrs. Bert Moore.

Miss Zoe Lenore Gray, member of the Conservation Committee, appointed by Governor Emmerson, has secured a fine print of the tree of which the Pine Rock Woman's club has assumed charge near Wood's corner. This photo will appear in the state tree conservation book. It is a stately maple, planted by Francis Tilton, a pioneer resident of Washington Grove. The tree was planted 74 years ago this spring and marks the birth of twin daughters into the Tilton family. One twin, Mrs. Eulalie Wright, now lives in the state of Washington, while the other, Mrs. Viola Sanford is a resident of the Grove making her home with her brother Frank Tilton. A large inglenook found on the J. B. Canfield farm now graces the triangular spot where the tree stands and will be dedicated next summer. The stone has been appropriately marked. The inscription was a gift to the club of a Rockford firm.

The Dixon Telegraph Accident Policy is a good thing to have. It costs but $1.25 a year. You are insured for $1,000 in case of death.

Hoover's Position Infinitely Stronger

Concord, N. H., Feb. 24—(AP)—U. S. Senator George H. Moses, Republican, today issued a statement in which he visualized President Hoover's prospects of re-election as "infinitely stronger" because of his economic program.

"The President has faced a Congress, one branch of which was and is organized by his political opponents, the Democratic party," said Moses. "In the other branch, he has faced a membership which has been personally hostile to him. Yet in the face of these difficulties the President's program of domestic legislation has been quickly enacted into law. In my opinion this action is merely a reflection of public opinion throughout the country."

TREASURER NUTT OF REPUBLICANS FOR REFERENDUM

Says Out Loud What Number Of Others Are Whispering

(Editor's Note: Raymond Clapper, manager of the United Press Washington Bureau, pursuing his political checkup outside the Capital, has interviewed at Cleveland, Treasurer J. R. Nutt of the Republican party and finds him as an individual favoring a change in the party's position toward the prohibition question. In the accompanying exclusive story, Clapper presents Nutt's views on this important subject, and shows how much a view squares with the attitude of Republican leaders in Washington.)

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, by United Press)
Cleveland, O., Feb. 25.—(UP)—J. R. Nutt, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, declared today in favor of a Republican platform endorsing a national prohibition referendum.

He believes such a referendum should be held in an off year so it would test popular sentiment without the complications possibly engendered in the politics of a presidential election year.

This Cleveland banker, having charge of raising party funds, thus joins a growing group of administration Republican leaders favoring a change in the party's attitude toward the prohibition controversy. Hitherto the Republican party has held to a law enforcement plank.

He revealed his position in an interview with United Press, emphasizing that he spoke as an individual and not as Treasurer of the party.

Spoke as Individual

"I would like to see the prohibition question brought to a vote so we could find out what the will of the people is," Nutt said. "But it should be done in a non-political way. There are about as many wets in the Democratic party as we have in the Republican party, maybe a few more. Both parties are divided. Why try to make it a party issue? We ought to have a clear-cut test where the question is just wet and dry and not Republican or Democratic."

"Do you mean that you would prefer to have a referendum for instance in 1933 rather than in a presidential year?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "Don't have it on party lines at all."

"Would you like to see such a step recommended in the Republican platform?" the interviewer asked.

"Yes I would," said Nutt. "I think that's the way it should be done. I do not vote for a man because he is a wet or a dry. I don't pay any attention to that as long as he is a good Republican. I am speaking of course as an individual, not as Treasurer of the Republican National Committee. I don't have anything to do with the platform."

As to the mechanics of a referendum, Nutt said it ought to be possible to find a way.

Others Feel Same Way

A banker rather than a politician Nutt said out loud what a number of high party leaders are whispering. He is an intimate of Postmaster Walter H. Clegg, President Hoover's unofficial political manager, who is understood to hold a similar view on the prohibition issue. Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills, Secretary of War Hurler, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of Navy Adams, and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, a majority of the cabinet—are understood to lean toward a change in the Republican party's attitude.

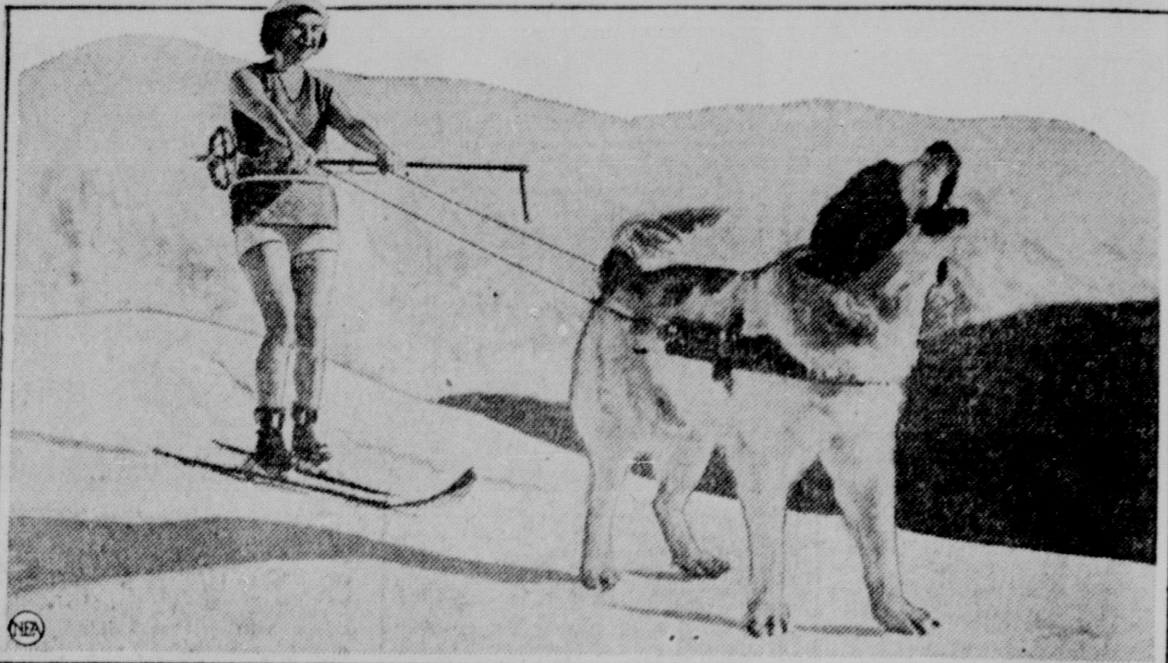

But the talk in Washington is carried on in stage whispers.

Nutt, in the offices of his Union Trust Company here, with his files full of correspondence from party contributors and unaffected by the political largess which seems suddenly to overcome his party associates in Washington every time the prohibition subject is mentioned seemed quite casual and unexcited over the question.

If there is a doubt as to what people think, why not find out, he holds. President Hoover is committed to the 18th amendment. But so many of his close associates are leaning toward a reopening of the prohibition question that the general belief is he would go along with the Republican convention's decisions thereon.

In addition to the strictly administrative group a number of influential Republican committeemen are moving in the same direction. These in-

Stars In Service Men's Track Meet

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Led by Herman Brix, Los Angeles Athletic Club star who will attempt to regain his national record in the 16 pound shotput event, many of America's greatest track and field stars will compete in the annual service men's meet at the 124th Field Artillery Armory tonight.

Brix has held the 16 pound shotput record five times but the mark was bettered with a toss of 52 feet, 8 1/2 inches last week by Leo Sexton in New York. Brix defeated Sexton in the National A. A. U. games this week but failed to regain the record.

Two other feature events on tonight's program are the sprint and hurdle medleys, in which George Simpson, Ralph Metcalf, Jack Tierney, James Owen, Allan East, G. D. Hutson and Louis Colletti will compete.

Dale Lettis, Illinois Athletic Club star; Orville Martin, Los Angeles A. C.; Jack Walters, Marquette University, and a teammate, Joe Sivak, will supply another feature with a spirited battle for the 1,00 yard run title.

Ernest "Pug" Rentner, Northwest-ern's All-American football star, will enter the high jump field, meeting such performers as Anton Burg, Illinois A. C.; Fred Glickert, Michigan State Normal and Chester Meinert of De Paul, Chicago.

MRS. JUDD TAKEN TO STATE PRISON TO AWAIT HANGING

Is Sentenced To Death By Judge Speakman In Phoenix Court

Arizona State Prison, Florence, Ariz., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Sentenced to hang May 11, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk" murderer, today occupied a cell in "condemned row" hopeful her attorneys may yet have her from the gallows.

Mrs. Judd was brought to the state prison from Phoenix late last night, a few hours after Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman denied her a new trial and sentenced her to death.

Although the execution date was set for May 11, state authorities said it was not likely she would be hanged for at least 15 months.

Under Arizona law an appeal to the state Supreme Court is mandatory in all cases where the death penalty is set. If the defense does not make an appeal, the state must ask for a review of the evidence. Because this appeal must be made the execution cannot take place for more than a year.

Sang Spanish Songs

Sheriff J. R. McFadden, who accompanied Mrs. Judd to the prison from Phoenix, said the convicted woman was in "very jovial spirits" on the trip, singing several Spanish songs. She learned Spanish while living in Mexico several years ago.

McFadden said he questioned her

Child Murder Victim and Clew to Killer

Janitor: Go to the top floor, you'll see something important in the bath-tub. I discovered it today, but I did not tell the police because I do not want to get in a jam. It's a murder.

Victim of New York's second unsolved "fend murder" within a week, the body of 13-year-old Marie Rosales (left) was found in a bath tub in a vacant apartment. Reproduced above is a postcard, mailed to the janitor of the building, which was regarded as the outstanding clew to the identity of the murderer.

matters. If there is anything in the record—" "All right," she cried desperately, and spectators leaned forward. "I was shot first—" "Neither girl was murdered—" "Sit down Mrs. Judd!" Her face fell again into the expressionless white mask it wore during the trial as she sank into her seat amid the clatter of gavel.

Sentence was then pronounced as Mrs. Judd stood calmly gazing about the courtroom as though the words did not sentence her to "be hanged by your neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul!"

Bozeman Is Leading Three-Cushion Play

Chicago Feb. 25.—(AP)—Youth was having its fling in the special allstar three cushion billiard tournament today.

Jay Bozeman, sensational young cueist from Vallejo, Cal., led the veteran field with a record of four victories and one defeat. Leading such stars as Willie Hoppe, Augie Kiechhefer, Welker Cochran and Art Thurnblad, he went into the lead yesterday with victories over Thurnblad and Cochran.

Kiechhefer, winner of the 1932 world's title, was in second place, with three victories and two defeats. Hoppe won his first match of the tournament last night by defeating Kiechhefer. Thurnblad had a record of two victories and as many defeats Cochran's record was two wins and four defeats, while Hoppe has won but one match in four starts.

TRUCKMEN FORM ASSOCIATION AT OTTAWA MEETING

Dixon And Ashton Men Attended Organization Meet

Several owners of trucks hauling from points in the vicinity of Dixon to Chicago attended a meeting at Ottawa Saturday afternoon at which time the Mid-West Truckman's Association composed of livestock and poultry truckers was formed and officers were elected. Another meeting is scheduled to be held at Sycamore Saturday at the Elks club. Plans have been outlined for the holding of meetings in various parts of central and northern Illinois, eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin, Michigan and northern Indiana to increase the membership and to explain the purposes of the organization. As outlined at the Ottawa meeting the association hopes to regulate the rates charged for hauling stock and poultry to Chicago and it also plans to set up a small office at the Union stock yards in Chicago to handle truckmen's affairs.

Co-operative buying of trucks to reduce expenses, the securing of cargoes from Chicago to country points so that trucks will not have to return empty and the establishment of service stations along the hard roads will also be backed by the organization. At the present time the association has a membership of 40 truckmen. A membership campaign to raise this number to 1,000 is planned for 1932. Membership in the association is open to all truckers in what is known as the "Chicago Area" and the annual dues are $10 a year.

Owners of small one-ton trucks as well as those who own fleets of trucks with a capacity of freight cars were among the truckers at the meeting Saturday. Representatives of insurance firms, oil companies, and stock yards terminal companies made talks.

The list of truckers registered at the Saturday meeting at Ottawa included the following from this locality: W. H. Austin, Dixon; Glenn W. Kendall, Ashton and Roy Burheim, Ashton.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY UNITED PRESS

Washington, Feb. 24.—(UP)—Taking them all in all, President Hoover's cabinet is a pretty good looking group of men.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur is the tallest. He stands well over six feet. Secretary of the Navy Adams barely comes to his shoulder.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley is generally considered the handsomest. And he's nearly as tall as Wilbur.

Only two are really bald-headed. They are Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont and Secretary of the Navy Adams. Wilbur, Hurley and Post-Master General Walter F. Brown have the most hair. Brown parts his neatly in the middle. Secretary of State Stimson tries to part his in the middle too, but it won't stay parted. It usually looks like it has just been through a hurricane. All the others, including Mr. Hoover, part their hair on the left hand side except Attorney General William D. Mitchell. He parts his to the right of the center.

Mr. Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson, go in for high shoes. Most of the others lean toward oxfords for business wear. Mr. Hoover's shoe laces often are a little too long and sometimes get untied. He pays no attention.

Lamont, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Doak, and Hurley wear double-breasted coats, such as once were considered characteristic of Mr. Hoover.

Secretary Doak and Postmaster General Brown wear spectacles at all times. Secretary Lamont usually has his around handy, perhaps in his hand while talking. The others use spectacles occasionally.

Secretaries Wilbur and Doak wear the highest collars. Mr. Hoover likes stripes in his ties. In that he has something in common with Vice-President Curtis. The Vice President likes striped trousers too.

Hurley and Doak usually carry neat kerchiefs protruding from their upper left hand coat pockets. Mr. Hoover usually crosses his knees when sitting down. He swings his left leg over his right. He and Curtis don't agree on that point. Curtis swings his right leg over his left.

There aren't very many good singers in high official position. When massed officialdom gathered for the Bicentennial observances Monday in the House chamber all present were expected to join in singing "America." Mr. Hoover did his best. A few Congressmen and Senators proved to have real voices. Only two members of the Supreme Court even tried to sing. They were Chief Justice Hughes, who knew the words but seemed a little uncertain of the music and Justice Owen J. Roberts. Roberts opened his mouth wide and sang heartily—and well. The story is being circulated that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, sang "God Save the King." America was pretty well done but not more than 25 per cent of those present got past the first line of the "Star Spangled Banner."

NIGHT FEAR

Among the disorders of sleep encountered among children is the condition known as night fear.

Children thus affected awaken in terror a few hours after they have fallen asleep.

They appear to be dazed, cannot make out their surroundings, and complain incoherently of some menacing thing or condition. This state continues until they are fully awakened or until they fall asleep again.

There may be underlying this condition what Freud terms a fear neurosis. Experience shows that it is more frequent among children of an otherwise sensitive and nervous temperament. Not infrequently, too, these are the children of neurotic, anxious parents.

The immediate antecedents to night fears are probably horrible dreams, which continue their evolution in the half wakened state of the child.

The basis of the dream may be found in some disturbing experience or in some state of anxiety under which the child is laboring.

Failure or threatened failure in school work, the displeasure of the parents, jealousy and similar disturbed emotional states may be sufficient to start off this distressing condition.

A matter to which little attention has been given is the effect of certain bed-time stories read to or by the child before it falls asleep.

U. S. Troops Within Range of Fire at Shanghai

This photo, rushed to the Dixon Evening Telegraph by an ocean greyhound and telephoto wires, shows soldiers of the 31st U. S. Infantry guarding the line separating the International settlement at Shanghai from Chapei, the Chinese city. These troops are within range of both Chinese and Japanese guns, and at times have witnessed battles in the street just beyond their sandbag barricades.

fighting, of hairbreadth escapes, and tales of giants and dwarfs are likely to stir the imagination of the child profoundly. Its fancies carry over from its wakeful state into sleep and then begin to run riot.

Children suffering night fears should be guarded against unnecessary nervous excitement, particularly late in the day. No school work should be allowed after five in the evening and the last meal should be light.

Failure of the condition to clear up after these precautions have been taken is an indication that more expert study of the case is needed.

Tomorrow—Suicides.

U. S. TROOPS IN ACTION

On February 25, 1918, an American patrol in the Chemin des Dunes sector of the Western Front penetrated the German lines for a considerable distance, attaining all its objectives and inflicting heavy losses.

German troops, still advancing in Russia, took Reval. They encountered no resistance from the exhausted and mutinous Russian forces.

In the Ukraine, however, intense fighting occurred between German and Ukrainian troops, with the Germans winning after suffering heavy losses.

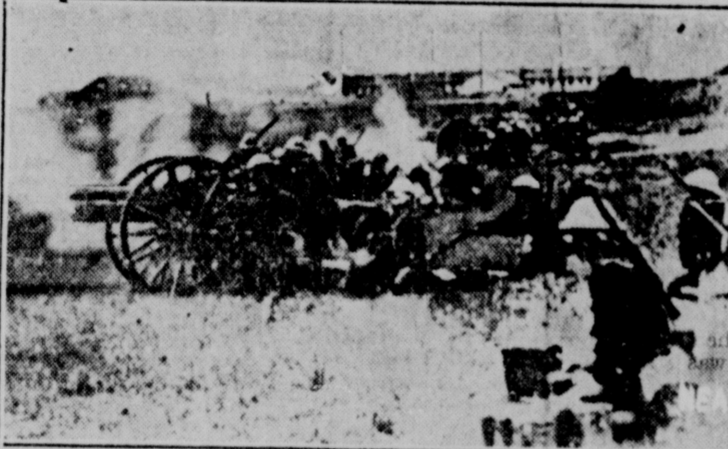

Chancellor von Hertling, in an address before the Reichstag, said that Germany was willing to end the war on the principal basis of President Wilson's 14 points. Certain exceptions were made, however, and Allied diplomats paid no attention to the move.

A National Labor Conference Board was formed at Washington to lay down a basis of relations with capital for the duration of the war.

HINTS for HOME GARDENERS

This is the first of a series of exclusive articles on vegetable gardening prepared for NEA Service and Dixon Evening Telegraph.

BY WM. R. BEATTIE
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture

From everywhere comes the report that people living on farms have had plenty to eat this winter. They may not have had many new clothes, but they are not worrying about food. They have their pantries filled with canned goods, and their cellar storages and bins are well stocked with potatoes, turnips, cabbage, and other products of their gardens and orchards.

Most of these folk have plenty of cured hams and bacon in their smokehouses, and also poultry and eggs, milk, butter, and, in some cases, fresh beef and mutton produced right on their own farms. With the exception of one or two local drought areas, farmers of the country grew plenty of food and feed last summer. In other words, they adopted the "Live at Home" policy last year and put it to work for all it was worth.

Not many town and city dwellers tried to do much with home curing or canning of their own meats, other than poultry, but last year was a big year in gardening in back yards and vacant lots. Town gardens, too, helped many a family live more "at home" and with less pressure on the family pocketbook. Many back yard gardens provided welcome supplements to the family table and also a substantial surplus for canning.

Now's The Time!

Another gardening season is with us. Now is the time to clean up the garden spot, to fertilize, consult seed catalogs, order seeds and fertilizers, and to sharpen spades and hoes so as to be ready for garden work at the first twitter of the robin or bluebird.

Don't waste time or precious garden space on crops that are not true and tried, but stick to the good old standbys that will give you a substantial return.

In small gardens it is usually economical to leave out potatoes and corn and to concentrate on vegeta-

Chapei a City of Flames and Death

Chapei, the Chinese city of cosmopolitan Shanghai, has known only destruction, fire and death in the past few weeks. War rages in the streets, and Japanese planes circle it almost daily, dropping bombs. The above photo, the most recent to reach the United States, shows a typical scene there, with buildings burning and the bodies of two slain civilians in the foreground.

bles that do not demand so much space.

Here's a List

Peas, beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage, beets, parsnips, radishes, spinach, lettuce, cucumbers, melons, squashes and potatoes are some of the crops we can grow and will keep our tables well supplied.

Good land is the key to a good garden, but it takes seeds, labor and brains to grow a good garden. If you have the land and can buy the seeds, knowledge of how to grow them can be largely acquired from garden publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Farmers' Bulletin No. 1637, "The Farm Garden," gives planting, tables and cultural information for gardeners.

This bulletin can be obtained by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Tomorrow: Seeds for the garden.

TREASURER NUTT OF REPUBLICANS FOR REFERENDUM

Says Out Loud What Number Of Others Are Whispering

(Editor's Note: Raymond Clapper, manager of the United Press Washington Bureau, pursuing his political checkup outside the Capital, has interviewed at Cleveland, Treasurer J. R. Nutt of the Republican party and finds him as an individual favoring a change in the party's position toward the prohibition question. In the accompanying exclusive story, Clapper presents Nutt's views on this important subject, and shows how much a view squares with the attitude of Republican leaders in Washington.)

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, by United Press)
Cleveland, Feb. 25.—(UP)—J. R. Nutt, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, declared today in favor of a Republican platform endorsing a national prohibition referendum.

He believes such a referendum should be held in an off year so it would tend popular sentiment without the complications possibly engendered in the politics of a presidential election year.

This Cleveland banker, having charge of raising party funds, thus joins a growing group of administration Republican leaders favoring a change in the party's attitude toward the prohibition controversy. Hitherto the Republican party has held to a law enforcement plank.

He revealed his position in an interview with United Press, emphasizing that he spoke as an individual and not as Treasurer of the party.

Spoke as Individual

"I would like to see the prohibition question brought to a vote so we could find out what the will of the people is," Nutt said. "But it should be done in a non-political way. There are about as many wets in the Democratic party as we have in the Republican party, maybe a few more. Both parties are divided. Why try to make it a party issue? We ought to have a clear-cut test where the question is just wet and dry and not Republican or Democratic."

"Do you mean that you would prefer to have a referendum for instance in 1933 rather than in a presidential year?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "Don't have it on party lines at all."

"Would you like to see such a step recommended in the Republican platform?" the interviewer asked.

"Yes I would," said Nutt. "I think that's the way it should be done. I do not vote for a man because he is a wet or a dry. I don't pay any attention to that as long as he is a good Republican. I am speaking of course as an individual and not as Treasurer of the Republican National Committee. I don't have anything to do with the platform."

As to the mechanics of a referendum, Nutt said it ought to be possible to find a way.

Others Feel Same Way

A banker rather than a politician Nutt said out loud what a number of high party leaders are whispering. He is an intimate of Postmaster Walter F. Brown, President Hoover's unofficial political manager, who is understood to hold a similar view on the prohibition issue. Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills, Secretary of War Hurley, Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of Navy Adams, and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, a majority of the cabinet—are understood to lean toward a change in the Republican party's attitude.

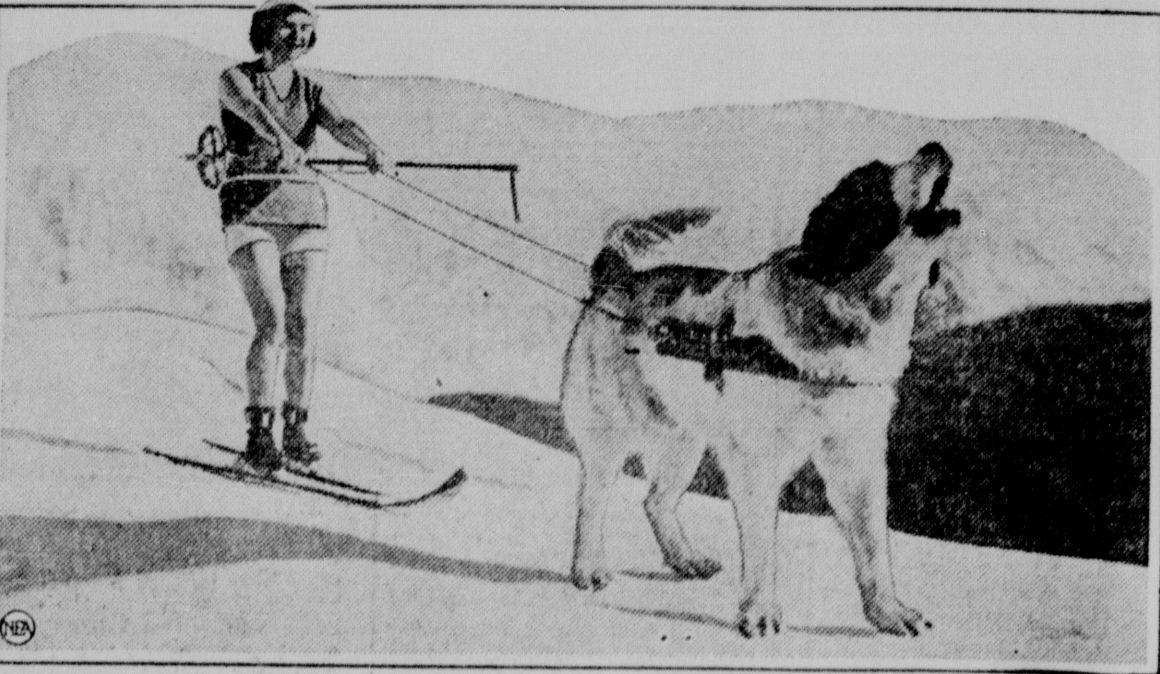

But the talk in Washington is carried on in stage whispers.

Nutt in the offices of his Union Trust Company here, with his files full of correspondence from party contributors and unaffected by the political laryngitis which seems suddenly to overcome his party associates in Washington every time the prohibition subject is mentioned seemed quite casual and unexcited over the question.

If there is a doubt as to what people think, why not find out, he holds. President Hoover is committed to the 18th amendment. But so many of his close associates are leaning toward a reopening of the prohibition question that the general belief is he would go along with the Republican convention's decisions thereon.

In addition to the strictly administration group a number of influential Republican committeemen are moving in the same direction. These in-

MRS. JUDD TAKEN TO STATE PRISON TO AWAIT HANGING

Is Sentenced To Death By Judge Speakman In Phoenix Court

Arizona State Prison, Florence, Ariz., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Sentenced to hang May 11, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk" murderer, today occupied a cell in "condemned row" hopeful her attorneys may yet save her from the gallows.

Mrs. Judd was brought to the state prison from Phoenix late last night, a few hours after Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman denied her a new trial and sentenced her to death.

Although the execution date was set for May 11, state authorities said it was not likely she would be hanged for at least 15 months. Under Arizona law an appeal to the state Supreme Court is mandatory in all cases where the death penalty is set. If the defense does not make an appeal, the state must ask for a review of the evidence. Because this appeal must be made the execution cannot take place for more than a year.

Sang Spanish Songs. Sheriff J. R. McFadden, who accompanied Mrs. Judd to the prison from Phoenix, said the convicted woman was in "very jovial spirits" on the trip, singing several Spanish songs. She learned Spanish while living in Mexico several years ago.

McFadden said he questioned her during the automobile trip about details of the killings of Mrs. Agnes Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, but that she declined to answer most of his questions.

In answer to the query "Did you have an accomplice?" the Sheriff said Mrs. Judd replied: "Yes, I had an accomplice." She refused, however, to name her purported accomplice. In court yesterday when she was sentenced, Mrs. Judd denied authorship of a letter said by her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, to have been written by her, in which an alleged accomplice was named.

ARGUED WITH JUDGE

Phoenix Ariz., Feb. 25.—(UP)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd today was an inmate of the state penitentiary at Florence under sentence to be hanged May 11 for the murder of Agnes Le Roi.

The 27-year-old minister's daughter was sentenced after her tumultuous courtroom appeal of innocence was quelled by Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman. Speakman denied a motion for a new trial and immediately was served with notice of appeal.

The slight, blonde woman took unusual advantage of the traditional opportunity to show cause why "sentence shall not be pronounced upon you" but spectators were more startled by what she did not say than by her semi-hysterical words.

A report had been current that Mrs. Judd had decided to "tell everything."

Through her counsel, Herman Lewkowitz, told the court there was no legal cause why sentence should not be pronounced Mrs. Judd was on her feet.

"I have this to say," she said. "Mr. Kleinman (a juror) went into the jury room calling me names—vulgar names—saying 'I have a friend on the Pardon Board; if I sentence her to hang she will readily talk.'"

Judge Speakman's gavel crashed. Discussion Quelled.

"Mrs. Judd," he said "I have every sympathy for you. But we cannot have a discussion of these matters—if you have anything to say based on evidence I will hear you."

She began again. "Neither of those girls were murdered. They weren't shot in the bedroom. There was no evidence of premeditation. There was no blood in the bedroom."

"Mrs. Judd we can't discuss those

I tried various remedies and even medical authorities and I cannot say that one of them helped me. But now I have taken four boxes of Gly-Cas and it has done wonders. It was a real boon to me. I am better in every way, eat, sleep and feel better and food agrees with me now. I would not be without Gly-Cas. It is such a remarkable remedy." Gly-Cas is sold by Campbell's White Cross Drug Store, Dixon, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

matters. If there is anything in the record—" "All right," she cried desperately, and spectators leaned forward: "I was shot first—" "Neither girl was murdered—" "Sit down Mrs. Judd!"

Her face fell again into the expressionless white mask it wore during the trial as she sank into her seat amid the clatter of gavel.

Sentence was then pronounced as Mrs. Judd stood solemnly gazing about the courtroom as though the words did not sentence her to "be hanged by your neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul!"

Bozeman Is Leading Three-Cushion Play

Chicago Feb. 25.—(AP)—Youth was having its fling in the special allstar three cushion billiard tournament today.

Jay Bozeman, sensational young cueist from Vallejo, Cal., led the veteran field with a record of four victories and one defeat. Leading such stars as Willie Hoppe, Augie Kiechhefer, Walker Cochran and Art Thurnblad, he went into the lead yesterday with victories over Thurnblad and Cochran.

Kiechhefer, winner of the 1932 world's title, was in second place, with three victories and two defeats. Hoppe won his first match of the tournament last night by defeating Kiechhefer. Thurnblad had a record of two victories and as many defeats Cochran's record was two wins and four defeats, while Hoppe has won but one match in four starts.

The picturesque Governor took his philosophy into the shadow of Indiana's great steel mills in a speech at Gary last night and incidentally threw his reception committee into confusion by getting "lost."

The committee had driven to Rensselaer to meet the Governor. Arrangements had been made to escort him to Crown Point for a banquet in his honor.

But news of the plan did not reach Murray and he proceeded to Gary by another route. The committee returned just before the meeting was ready to start. The army was packed. People were thronged outside, unable to get in. But Murray was not in sight.

The committee glanced at watches nervously. Suddenly a shout went up. Murray had been spied across the street in a lunchroom, calmly drinking his coffee, unaware he had been "lost."

TRUCKMEN FORM ASSOCIATION AT OTTAWA MEETING

Dixon And Ashton Men Attended Organization Meet

Several owners of trucks hauling from points in the vicinity of Dixon to Chicago attended a meeting at Ottawa Saturday afternoon at which time the Mid-West Truckmen's Association composed of livestock and poultry truckers was formed and officers were elected. Another meeting is scheduled to be held at Sycamore Saturday at the Elks club. Plans have been outlined for the holding of meetings in various parts of central and northern Illinois, eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin, Michigan and northern Indiana to increase the membership and to explain the purposes of the organization. As outlined at the Ottawa meeting the association hopes to regulate the rates charged for hauling stock and poultry to Chicago and it also plans to set up a small office at the Union stock yards in Chicago to handle truckmen's affairs.

Co-operative buying of trucks to reduce expenses, the securing of cargoes from Chicago to country points so that trucks will not have to return empty and the establishment of service stations along the hard roads will also be backed by the organization. At the present time the association has a membership of 40 truckmen. A membership campaign to raise this number to 1,000 is planned for 1932. Membership in the association is open to all truckers in what is known as the "Chicago Area" and the annual dues are $10 a year.

Owners of small one ton trucks as well as those who own fleets of trucks with a capacity of freight cars were among the truckers at the meeting Saturday. Representatives of insurance firms, oil companies, and stock yards terminal companies made talks.

The list of truckers registered at the Saturday meeting at Ottawa included the following from this locality: W. H. Austin, Dixon; Glenn W. Kendall, Ashton and Roy Burheim, Ashton.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY UNITED PRESS

Washington, Feb. 24—(UP)—Taking them all in all, President Hoover's cabinet is a pretty good looking group of men.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur is the tallest. He stands well over six feet. Secretary of the Navy Adams barely comes to his shoulder.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley is generally considered the handsomest. And he's nearly as tall as Wilbur.

Only two are really bald-headed. They are Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont and Secretary of the Navy Adams. Wilbur, Hurley and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown have the most hair. Brown parts his neatly in the middle. Secretary of State Stimson tries to part his in the middle too, but it won't stay parted. It usually looks like it has just been through a hurricane. All the others, including Mr. Hoover, part their hair on the left hand side except Attorney General William D. Mitchell. He parts his a little to the right of the center.

Mr. Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson go in for high shoes. Most of the others lean toward oxfords for business wear. Mr. Hoover's shoes lace often are a little too long and sometimes get untied. He pays no attention.

Lamont, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Doak, and Hurley wear double-breasted coats, such as once were considered characteristic of Mr. Hoover.

Secretary Doak and Postmaster General Brown wear spectacles at all times. Secretary Lamont usually has his around handy, perhaps in his hand while talking. The others use spectacles occasionally.

Secretaries Wilbur and Doak wear the highest collars. Mr. Hoover likes stripes in his ties. In that he has something in common with Vice-President Curtis. The Vice President likes striped trousers too.

Hurley and Doak usually carry neat kerchiefs protruding from their upper left hand coat pockets. Mr. Hoover usually crosses his knees when sitting down. He swings his left leg over his right. He and Curtis don't agree on that point. Curtis swings his right leg over his left.

There aren't very many good singers in high official position. When massed officialdom gathered for the Bicentennial observances Monday in the House chamber all present were expected to join in singing "America." Mr. Hoover did his best. A few Congressmen and Senators proved to have real voices. Only two members of the Supreme Court even tried to sing. They were Chief Justice Hughes, who knew the words but seemed a little uncertain of the music and Justice Owen J. Roberts. Roberts opened his mouth wide and sang heartily—and well. The story is being circulated that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, sang "God Save the King." America was pretty well done but not more than 25 per cent of those present got past the first line of the "Star Spangled Banner."

NIGHT FEAR

Among the disorders of sleep encountered among children is the condition known as night fear.

Children thus affected awaken in terror a few hours after they have fallen asleep.

They appear to be dazed, cannot make out their surroundings, and complain incoherently of some menacing thing or condition. This state continues until they are fully awakened or until they fall asleep again.

There may be underlying this condition what Freud terms a fear neurosis. Experience shows that it is more frequent among children of an otherwise sensitive and nervous temperament. Not infrequently, too, these are the children of neurotic, anxious parents.

The immediate antecedents to night fears are probably horrible dreams, which continue their evolution in the half wakened state of the child.

The basis of the dream may be found in some disturbing experience or in some state of anxiety under which the child is laboring.

Failure or threatened failure in school work, the displeasure of the parents, jealousy and similar disturbed emotional states may be sufficient to start off this distressing condition.

A matter to which little attention has been given is the effect of certain bed-time stories read to or by the child before it falls asleep.

Tales of adventure, of Indian

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

U.S. Troops Within Range of Fire at Shanghai

This photo, rushed to the Dixon Evening Telegraph by an ocean greyhound and telephoto wires, shows soldiers of the 31st U. S. Infantry guarding the line separating the International settlement at Shanghai from Chapei, the Chinese city. These troops are within range of both Chinese and Japanese guns, and at times have witnessed battles in the street just beyond their sandbag barricades.

fighting, of hairbreadth escapes, and tales of giants and dwarfs are likely to stir the imagination of the child profoundly. Its fancies carry over from its wakeful state into sleep and then begin to run riot.

Children suffering night fears should be guarded against unnecessary nervous excitement, particularly late in the day. No school work should be allowed after five in the evening and the last meal should be light.

Failure of the condition to clear up after these precautions have been taken is an indication that more expert study of the case is needed.

Tomorrow—Suicides.

U. S. TROOPS IN ACTION

On February 25, 1918, an American patrol in the Chemin des Dames sector of the Western Front penetrated the German lines for a considerable distance, attaining all its objectives and inflicting heavy losses.

German troops, still advancing in Russia, took Reval. They encountered no resistance from the exhausted and mutinous Russian forces.

In the Ukraine, however, intense fighting occurred between German and Ukrainian troops, with the Germans winning after suffering heavy losses.

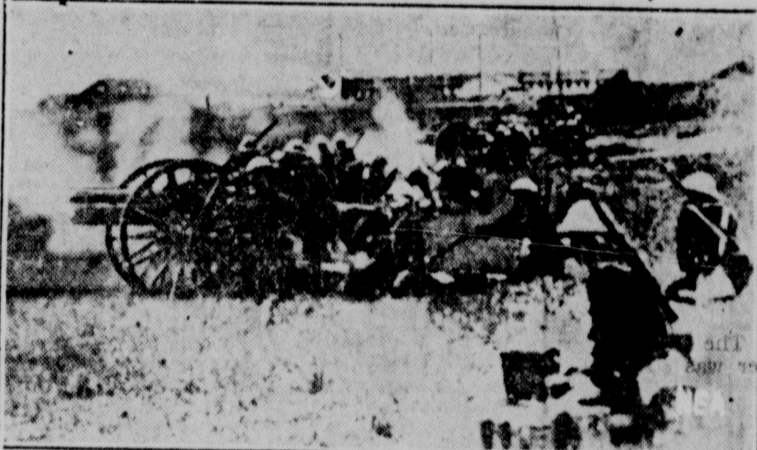

Chancellor von Hertling, in an address before the Reichstag, said that Germany was willing to end the war on the principal basis of President Wilson's 14 points. Certain exceptions were made, however, and Allied diplomats paid no attention to the move.

A National Labor Conference Board was formed at Washington to lay down a basis of relations with capital for the duration of the war.

HINTS for HOME GARDENERS

This is the first of a series of exclusive articles on vegetable gardening prepared for NEA Service and Dixon Evening Telegraph.

BY WM. R. BEATTIE
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S.
Department of Agriculture

From everywhere comes the report that people living on farms have had plenty to eat this winter. They may not have had many new clothes, but they are not worrying about food. They have their pantry shelves filled with canned goods, and their cellar storages and bins are well stocked with potatoes, turnips, cabbage, and other products of their gardens and orchards.

Most of these folk have plenty of cured hams and bacon in their smokehouses, and also poultry and eggs, milk, butter, and, in some cases, fresh beef and mutton produced right on their own farms. With the exception of one or two local drought areas, farmers of the country grew plenty of food and feed last summer. In other words, they adopted the "Live at Home" policy last year and put it to work for all it was worth.

Not many town and city dwellers tried to do much with home curing or canning of their own meats, other than poultry, but last year was a big year in gardening in back yards and vacant lots. Town gardens, too, helped many a family live more "at home" and with less pressure on the family pocketbook. Many back yard gardens provided welcome supplements to the family table and also a substantial surplus for canning.

Now's The Time!

Another gardening season is with us. Now is the time to clean up the garden spot, to fertilize, consult seed catalogs, order seeds and fertilizers, and to sharpen spades and hoes so as to be ready for garden work at the first twitter of the robin or bluebird.

Don't waste time or precious garden space on crops that are not true and tried, but stick to the good old standbys that will give you a substantial return.

In small gardens it is usually economical to leave out potatoes and corn and to concentrate on vegeta-

Chapei a City of Flames and Death

Chapei, the Chinese city of cosmopolitan Shanghai, has known only destruction, fire and death in the past few weeks. War rages in the streets, and Japanese planes circle it almost daily, dropping bombs. The above photo, the most recent to reach the United States, shows a typical scene there, with buildings burning and the bodies of two slain civilians in the foreground.

bles that do not demand so much space.

Here's a List

Peas, beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage, beets, parsnips, radishes, spinach, lettuce, cucumbers, melons, squashes and potatoes are some of the crops we can grow and will keep our tables well supplied.

Good land is the key to a good garden, but it takes seeds, labor and brains to grow a good garden. If you have the land and can buy the seeds, knowledge of how to grow them can be largely acquired from garden publications of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Farmers' Bulletin No. 1637, "The Farm Garden," gives planting, tables and cultural information for gardeners.

This bulletin can be obtained by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Tomorrow: Seeds for the garden.

MINNESOTA AND MICH. STATE IN CONCERTED MOVE

Each School Is Making an Effort To Retain Its Grid Coach

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—Two concerted athletic drives were in full swing today—one of them to keep H. O. "Fritz" Crisler from tossing up his athletic directorship at Minnesota to coach football at Princeton and the other to induce football coach Jimmy Crowley from leaving Michigan State to accept a similar position at Iowa.

As Crisler returned from Chicago, where he went to study the Princeton offer in peace, student leaders at Minnesota planned to make a personal appeal in an effort to make him remain with the Gophers. Even representatives of Minnesota societies were out to try their influence while another student delegation urged the school administration to make renewed efforts to retain his services.

At Michigan State, where Crowley has been unusually successful as a football coach, since succeeding Harry Kipke, now head coach at Michigan, President Robert S. Shaw asked him to withhold his acceptance of the Iowa offer for at least another 48 hours.

Meanwhile, a formal announcement was anticipated from Princeton as to Crisler's rejection or acceptance. Some of his friends were certain that he would accept not only because he wasn't exactly satisfied at Minnesota but because of a reported salary of $12,500 a year. Crisler conferred with his old adviser, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago, himself a Yale graduate, during his visit in Chicago.

Unlike Crisler, Crowley was reported to be fully satisfied at Michigan State. Iowa is known to have offered him more money but Michigan state may counter with a substantial increase—a move almost certain to keep him there.

The football coaching situation at Wisconsin still was very much in the air. With spring practice only a few weeks off, nothing definite was in sight as to selecting a successor to Coach Glen Thistlethwaite.

BOWLING NEWS

By EDWARD WORLEY

New team series and single game counts were recorded during league play by the Fallstrom Florists when they accumulated games of 1013-1050-971 for a total of 3034. The Chapman Oil Co. were the losers in two of these contests, winning the last encounter by coming thru with a big game of 1034 against 971 by the Florists. A. Hackett of the Florists put 229 pins to action his second game for high single game for this match. Ed Worley collaborated with 208-201-209 for a series of 618, which stood as high for this series. Worley gained another point in individual averages and now holds an average of 202.5 for the fifteen game series. C. V. Chapman with 192 is possessor of second berth in the average standing. John Smith holding fourth place with 187.7. The Florists are now in a tie with the Dixon Recreation for first in team standing.

Winning two from the Vaile & O'Malley team did much to improve the Better Paint Store's standings, their winning column now numbering 9 against only 6 defeats. Royal Fitzsimmons cracked out the only 200 count for the entire series, and totaled 526 to win this event, beating Arnold LaCur of the Better Paint store by 2 pins. The Vaile & O'Malley team are in four place with 7 wins and 8 defeats to date.

Close games between the Dixon Recreation and Ideal Cafe Teams were afforded fans last week the former winning two of the contests. John Lange was graced with all the honors by rolling the big series, with 567 and high single game of 202. Frank Cleary totaled 563 and holds third in individual average standing with 189.12 Ed Detweiler with 556 still considers fifth place with 181.3.

Lawrence Poole was the winner of 5 free tickets for bowling last week, with a big game of 277. John Lange won 4 with a 244 count and Frank Cleary 2 with 238.

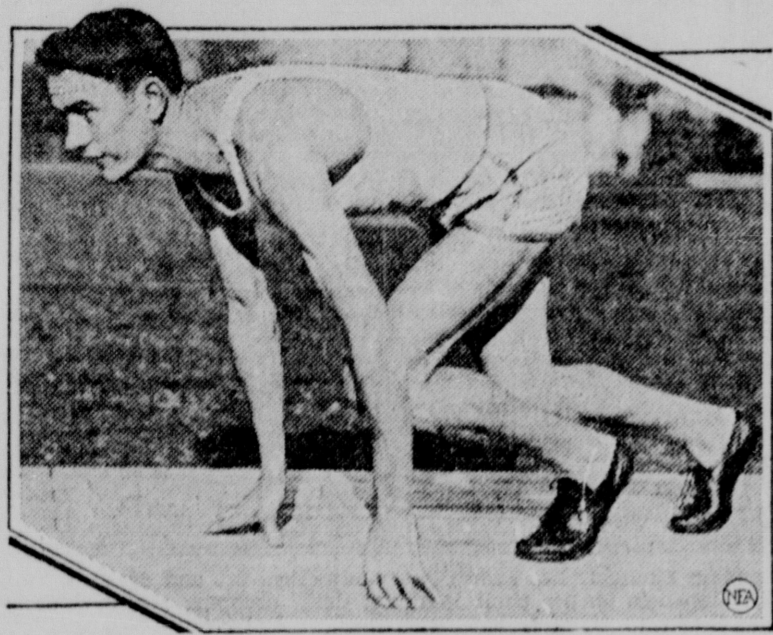

Larry Poole was also awarded a free suit cleaning at the Quality Cleaners for his 277 game last week.

Broke Record So He Could Have Teeth Fixed Free

Gene Venzke's starting form . . . notice the straight back line.

By DEXTER TEED
NEA Service Writer

Boyetown, Pa.—Galloping across the prairie with an effortless stride, a tall, skinny boy laughed joyously as he outdistanced the other boys chasing him. He turned and came loping up to the general store at the hamlet of Leaf Valley, Minn.

"Golly, how that little Venzke kid can run," exclaimed one old-timer. "Runs like he was born a-running. Acts so natural-like."

That was nine-year-old Gene Venzke, who 14 years later was to amaze the world of athletics by running a mile in 4 minutes and 10 seconds at the New York A. C. indoor games, with a final dynamic burst of speed that brought 12,000 pop-eyed spectators to their feet in a storm of applause.

It surpassed the best that great Nurmi had ever done. It broke the record of 4 minutes 11-5 seconds that Venzke had set only two weeks before. And it assured America that here was a distance runner who, in the coming Olympics, will have a chance to return to this country records that Europeans have held.

Gene Venzke has enjoyed running since the days he ran for fun on the prairies, then later in St. Paul and Denver and finally here in Boyetown, where he has lived for 12 years.

Two years ago he tried to enter the Millrose games in New York, but he was told to go out and get a reputation. Gene lives in the country between Boyetown and Pottstown. There are eight children, with Gene in the middle according to age. His father, William, has a farm in Florida but Gene remains with his mother, three brothers and four sisters. Though 23 years old he is only a senior in high school, because he dropped out for five years to work as a tool-maker's apprentice.

Until recently Gene didn't realize he might be a champion. He played basketball, pitched on the baseball team, played hockey, handball, swim and did all the things athletic youths do. Six years ago he concentrated on running. He entered a minor marathon in Reading and won it. That wasn't much.

In 1926, he was in the Graphic marathon in New York, running from the Bronx to City Hall. Nobody paid much attention to the tall dark-haired youth who finished in 55th place. Mike Sweeney, veteran coach at Hill School, saw him and started to show him how it was done. Gene improved and continued to improve. About a year ago he began to attract attention.

Unspoiled, modest and likeable, Gene is a bit bewildered by fame. He is packed with nervous energy like an Arabian pony.

Do You Remember?

One Year Ago Today — Middleweight Champion Mickey Walker spotted rubbry Johnny Risko 30 pounds and gave him a 10-round beating in the feature bout of Pa. Stribling's Miami fight show. It was Walker's second victory over the Cleveland heavyweight.

Five Years Ago Today — 15,000 fans who made up a gate of $41,789 saw Paulino, the Basque wood-chopper, decision Knute Hansen in 10 rounds at Madison Square Garden. Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight in his American debut won from Charley Anderson, a Chicago negro, on a foul in the ninth.

Ten Years Ago Today — Jake Driscoll, Boston A. A. runner, won the Buermeyer "500" in 58 3-5 seconds, world record time, in the New York A. C. indoor games. L. T. Brown of Dartmouth high jumped 6 feet 4 3-4 inches, a new world indoor record, in the Harvard-Cornell-Dartmouth triangular indoor games.

BROTHERS MEET AFTER 50 YEARS

Portland, Ore.—(UP)—J. C. Donaldson Selby walked to his front door in answer to a knock. A stranger asked, "Don't you remember me, Jim?" It was his brother Bob, whom he hadn't seen since 1890, when they both lived in Manitoba.

Venzke in action . . . with that easy ground-eating stride.

"Can't sleep for two days after a meet," he says, then he tells this story: After his record-shattering performance in New York he tossed and rolled all night. At dawn he got up and went for a walk through Central Park.

Before he went to New York recently a local dentist met him on the street. Gene remarked that he had been having trouble with his teeth. "Well," said the dentist jocularly. "Run a mile in four-ten and I'll fix 'em for you free."

Gene laughed. "I was thinking about that all the time I was running," said Gene. "When I came to that last lap I said to myself, 'Well, I've got to do some sprinting to get my teeth fixed free,' so I stepped on it."

Gene hopes to make the Olympic team. Next year he may go to college. Weighing 160 pounds and standing 6 feet 1 1-2 inches, he is in wonderful physical condition. He doesn't smoke but he admits he "likes a glass of beer."

He is of German descent and to the German families around here he is a hero.

Baseball Gossip

By The Associated Press
BASEBALL'S HOPEFULS

Oscar Fred Louis Roettger, 32-year-old brother of Wally Roettger of the St. Louis Cardinals, comes up to the Philadelphia Athletics with a long and varied baseball record. Having failed twice to make good as a major league pitcher, he now hopes to catch on as a first baseman.

He broke in as a moundsman with Joplin in 1921. Before that season was over he pitched for three clubs and turned in two no-hit games. He received a trial with the New York Yankees but was released to St. Paul in 1924. Brooklyn brought him up to the majors in 1927 but returned him to the Saints.

Like Babe Ruth, Roettger decided hitting was better than pitching and moved over to first base. Last year he made such a good record with his bat that the Athletics bought him from the Saints. In 114 games he made 217 hits for an average of .357. He scored 97 runs and batted in 101. He hit 15 homers, 6 triples and 38 doubles.

Roettger is a right hander, six feet one and weighs 185 pounds.

ALEX HELPS CUBS

Catalina Islands, Cal. Feb. 25—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby admits there is no room for the veteran Grover Cleveland Alexander on the Cubs staff this year, but he is taking full advantage of Alex's baseball knowledge in drilling his rookies.

Ever since the rookie school opened old Alex has been imparting knowledge to Cub pitching hopefuls. The veterans already on hand picked up some pointers from the old master, too.

FONSECA NON-COMMITTAL

Mineral Wells, Tex., Feb. 25—(AP)—Lew Fonseca, new pilot of the White Sox, just won't make any predictions about the 1932 American League flag race.

As he led his White Sox crew toward their one week stopping off place here, Fonseca told all newspapermen: "We'll wait and see what happens when the season opens."

Hiking and a liberal portion of salt baths will make up the White Sox training grind here for one week after which they will entrain for their regular camp at San Antonio.

HAINES NURSES ARM

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Jess Haines, big hurler of the world's champion Cardinals, is playing careful nursemaid to his right arm. Although an X-ray, taken in St. Louis just before coming to training camp here, showed the arm was good as ever, Haines said, he isn't taking any chances on a flareback from the injury he suffered toward the end of last season, and which kept him out of the world series.

TIGERS AT STANFORD

Richardson Springs, Cal., Feb. 25—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers will cavort on Stanford University's sunken baseball diamond when they assemble at Palo Alto next week for serious spring training. The 20-odd players who are repairing the ravages of winter at the conditioning camp here will leave Sunday night to join the remainder of the squad at the training camp.

REDS ENTHUSIASTIC

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Enthusiasm continued unabated in the Cincinnati Reds' training camp today, and Manager Dan Howley was compelled to order his athletes to slow up for a few days.

Howley has not been talking much but two facts were apparent: That he counts on St. Johnson to be his pitching ace this season, and that Mickey Heath has first call on the first base job despite the presence of the veterans, Heilmann, Hendrick and Grantham.

Both are youngsters in the major leagues.

FERRELL LOOKS FIT

New Orleans, Feb. 25—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell, ace of the Cleveland Indians moundsmen, freshly arrived at the spring encampment, looks almost ready for the season's start. He reported yesterday, just two pounds heavier than at the close of the last campaign.

Only five minutes of easy pitching was allowed the 16 pitchers yesterday, but Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said he would let them go a bit stronger today.

ASPIRING MOUNDSMEN

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 25—(AP)—Ambitious rookies with possibly only two mound jobs to work for, give promise of producing some keen competition in the Washington Senators' camp next week when Manager Walter Johnson gives them the word to start showing their steam.

The new rule reducing to 23 the player limit has made the running a bit closer for these young hopefuls as six of the eight or nine mound berths are considered well provided with Crowder, Marberry, Brown, Fischer, Burke and Weaver.

Johnson has shown impatience to see how performance will bear up the judgment of his appraising eye with respect to the hurlers.

Frank Ragland, Lynn Griffith, Robert Friederich, Michael Delaney and John Boyle are the aspiring moundsmen.

STARS STILL HOLDOUTS

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Connie Mack has scored one victory in his holdout war by reaching a salary agreement with rookie pitcher Merritt Cain, but has yet to pierce the armor of Rube Walberg and Lefty Grove.

Walberg and Mack had a talk at the ball park but it wasn't about money, Connie declared before he turned back the supervising the daily drill. Grove still nods to his boss when they meet but they have not yet discussed salary.

GIBSON TEACHES WOOD

Paso Robles, Calif., Feb. 25—(AP)—In addition to his other duties, Manager George Gibson of the Pittsburgh Pirates has taken onto himself a "one-student" pitching class. Charlie Wood, young twirler who started out in sensational fashion last season and finished in a slump.

Gibson yesterday put Wood in the box and spent a half hour by his side coaching.

The Pirate pilot also gave his charges a few new touches in yesterday's session by pitching in batting practice.

John Niggeling, with Des Moines of the Western League last season, and Jim Bevin, who spent 1931 with Wichita of the same circuit, are showing fine pitching form.

NEW TRAINING STUNT

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, Manager of the New York Yankees, has devised a new training stunt that has proved highly effective in bringing out a free flow of perspiration.

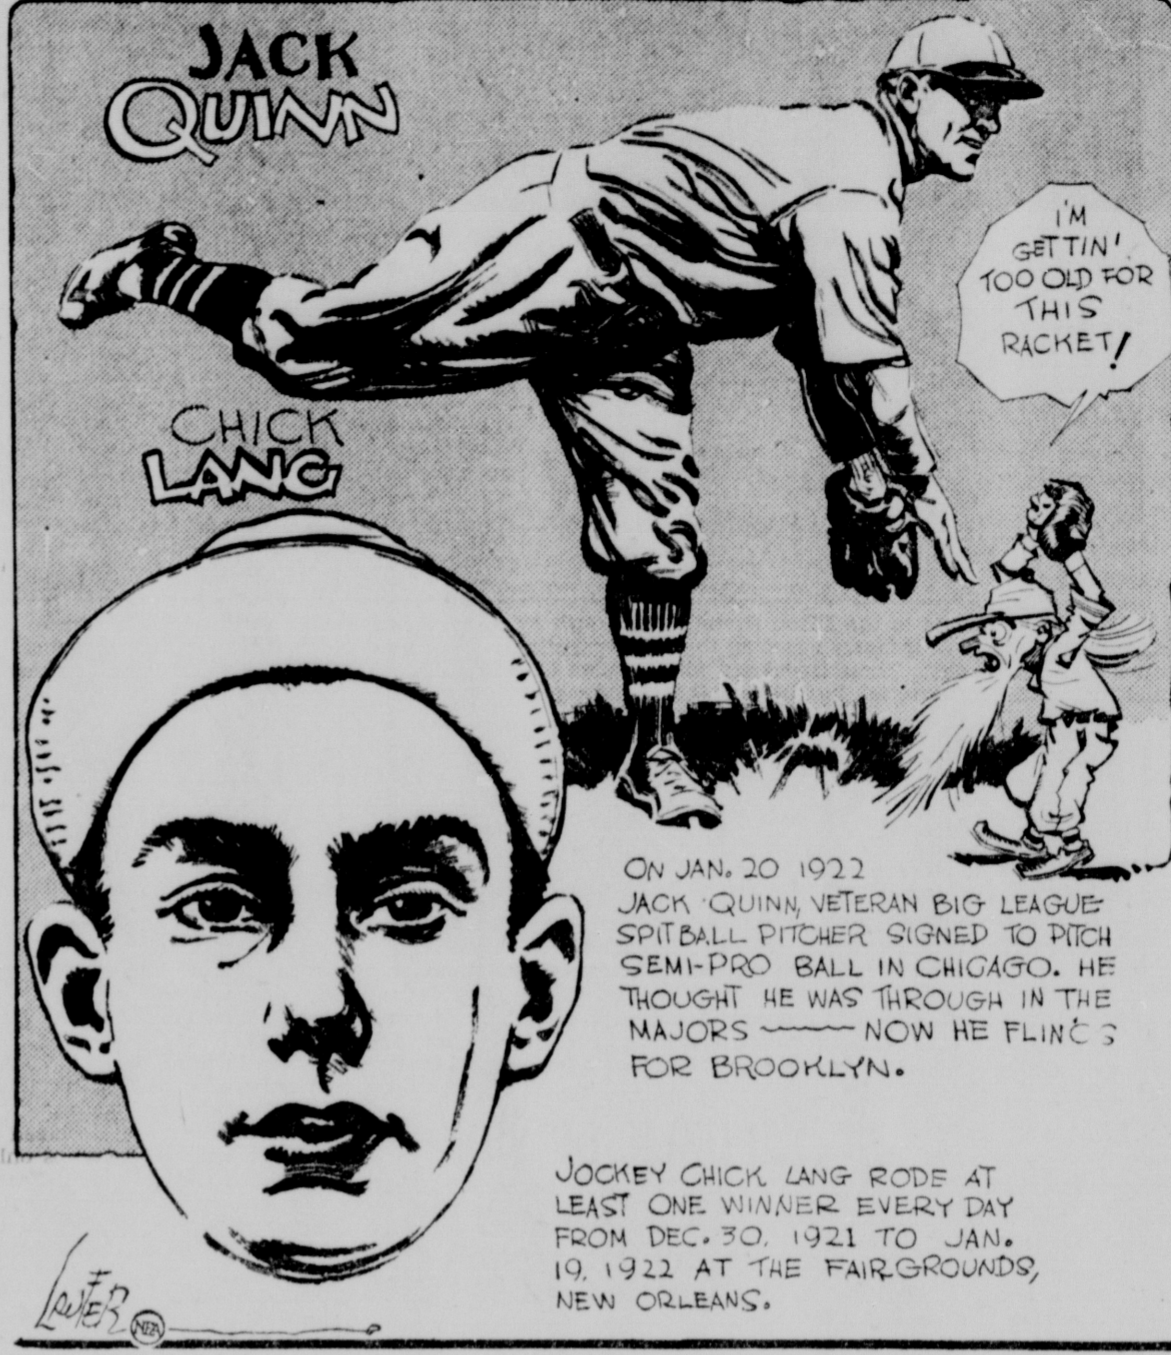

McCarthy has his men engaged in a series of walking races around the bases, starting one man at the home plate and another, at second, to make a complete circuit. When the players thought they had had enough walking, Joe staged another series of races, but this time they ran.

camp followers of the New York Giants are trying to figure out just how the Giant squad of infielders will be lined up for the coming season.

The general idea is that there will be six and that Bill Terry, Travis Jackson and Johnny Vergez are sure bets. Hughie Critz is another if his weak arm comes around and if not Freddy Lindstrom is due to get his job. That leaves Moore, Sam Leslie, a probable first base substitute, and Eddie Marshall.

Experience seems to favor Moore, who was drafted from Oakland this year. He has been up in the majors with Brooklyn, the Boston Braves and Pittsburgh.

NO STARS ON DODGERS

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Figuring that a lot of his prestige as a manager may depend upon his handling of such temperamental stars as Dazzy Vance, Max Carey, Brooklyn pilot, says he plans to treat the Dazzler "just the same as any other pitcher."

"There will be no stars on our team," Max explained just after he and Vance had agreed on salary terms, "just ball players. Vance will work my way and my way only. When I consider him fit to pitch he will pitch regardless of how much rest he has had. Naturally, he will have rest between games, but he must take his turn with the rest of the pitchers."

SPORT BRIEFS

Chicago, Feb. 25—(UP)—Mrs. William Wrigley, Jr., has been elected a member of the executive board of the Chicago Cubs. No chairman was named to fill the place of the late William Wrigley, Jr. Members of the board are P. K. Wrigley, A. D. Lasker, William M. Walker and William L. Veeck.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 25—(UP)—Absent mindedness of A. Thomas Taylor of St. Joseph, Mo., Yale varsity football halfback and substitute basketball forward, gave an unexpected laugh to persons who saw Yale defeat Williams 26 to 18 last night.

Tommy hadn't played much this season. With only a few minutes to play and a safe margin of goals, Coach Elmer Ripley sent him into the game.

It was his "big moment." The ball bounded into Taylor's arms at the Yale end of the court. Tucking it under his arm and lowering his head he plunged down the court for a touchdown.

Chicago, Feb. 25—(UP)—A welterweight title bout between Jackie Fields of Los Angeles, champion, and Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver, B. C., challenger, today seemed assured for the Chicago Stadium either March 18 or 30.

Fields, who re-won the title recently from Lou Brouillard, has agreed to defend his laurels for the Stadium and McLarnin yesterday accepted terms offered him for the match.

Because of three non-title bouts already booked Fields may not be ready for the March 18 date wanted by the Stadium. Fields meets Jimmy Belmont at Pittsburgh Feb. 29, Johnny Indrisano at Boston March 4 and Jackie Horner at Denver March 8.

Quebec, Feb. 25—(UP)—Emlie St.

Driving his huskies over the 41-mile course each day during the three-day competition he finished with a total time of 10:28:01.

Short Russick of Manitoba came second, and Leonhardt Seppala of Alaska finished third. Fourteen teams competed in the race.

Boston, Feb. 25—(UP)—"Gentleman" Jack Washburn, Los Angeles, Calif., heavyweight wrestler, was held by police today on a charge of assault and battery on Referee Bert Potts of Philadelphia.

Washburn wrestled Jack Smith of Chicago at Boston Garden last night.

Potts was recovering at Haymarket Relief Hospital from minor injuries received when Washburn, taking exception to Pott's decisions, allegedly hurled the small, elderly referee, over the ropes onto the floor.

The charge against Washburn was filed by Richard E. Dunn, manager of the Garden. Washburn was unable to furnish $10,000 bail.

Excess fat comes to many after 30. People gain weight and slow down. Medical science has found a great reason—lack of a certain gland secretion. Now doctors the world over supply that lacking factor. Thus excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast.

That factor is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. For 24 years, Marmola has brought to multitudes this right reduction method at small cost. Perkins won 2 and 1 from Winfield Day Chicago, while Odom defeated Tom Huggins of New York City.

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Pre-tournament favorites of the South Atlantic women's golf championship have advanced to the quarter finals and the luck of the draw saw them all meeting outsiders today.

Miss Frances Williams of Allentown, Pa., the medalist, Miss Bea Gottlieb of New York and Mrs. Lillian Zech of Chicago the first three finishers in the qualifying round, were favored to win in today's quarter final.

Mrs. L. Solomon of Memphis, Tenn., state champion, and Mrs. J. Lawlor of New Rochelle, N. Y., both consistent golfers and both of whom advanced by wide margins in the first round play met in what was expected to be the closest battle of the day.

Miss Williams was paired with Mrs. G. G. Smith of Orlando today. Miss Gottlieb with Mrs. K. Bragow of Orange, N. J., and Mrs. Zech with Mrs. F. V. Jackson of Point Judith, R. I.

Stribling, Schaaf Each To Seek K. O.

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—"Pat" Stribling has instructed his fighting son, W. L., to go out after a knockout and nothing less when he tangles with Ernie Schaaf, hard punching Bostonian, in their important 10 round battle at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

"My boy's future depends on the result of this match and a mere decision victory will not be satisfactory to us," the father-manager of the Georgian said. "A knockout victory would elevate W. L. to third ranking among the heavyweights, a spot that would enable him to harass Sharkey and Schmeling."

Schaaf, who will have Sharkey in his corner, has exactly the same battle plan mapped out—a knockout. He wound up his heavy drill yesterday in fine condition and expects to outweigh Stribling by a margin of 20 pounds at ringside, scaling around 208 to Strib's 188.

With the match only a day off, the boxoffice reported a new rush of business, indicating the gate may be around $35,000.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 25—(AP)—Negotiations are underway to sign Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, as one of the principals of the annual Derby Eve fight card her May 6.

Dempsey went to Chicago today after receiving a commission as a Kentucky Colonel from Governor Ruby Laffoon at Frankfort.

Promoters of Dempsey's fight here Tuesday, in which he whips Frankie Wine, Butte, Mont., believe the former champ on would draw a record crowd here Derby Eve. His signing is understood to hinge on prospects of obtaining a suitable opponent.

BRITISHER NOT SATISFIED WITH BREAKING RECORD

Captain Campbell To Try For New Speeds At Daytona Today

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 25—(UP)—Disatisfied with his three world automobile speed records set yesterday, Captain Sir Malcolm Campbell, hawk-faced British racing driver, was determined to bullet over the beach today in his super-car Bluebird for six new world records.

Flashing over the white coral sands yesterday like a blurred, blue streak, Sir Malcolm and his car established the following amazing record average speeds for three distances:

(1) One mile—253.968 miles an hour, bettering his own record by 8.235 miles an hour.

(2) One kilometer—251.340 miles an hour, bettering his own record by 5.254 miles an hour.

(3) Five kilometers—241.569 miles an hour, bettering his own record by 22.524 miles an hour.

Only a broken timing device prevented him from hanging up a new mark for five miles. One of the traps broke and timers were unable to clock him for that distance. All records were made during the same two 12-mile runs, southward and northward on the beach.

Today, Sir Malcolm was prepared to shatter records for one mile, one kilometer, five miles, five kilometers, 10 miles and 10 kilometers.

To Try For All Marks

Late last night, the lean Britisher with the blistered hands announced: "I shall definitely attempt to better all records up to ten miles Thursday if beach conditions remain good."

At midnight, with the tide partly ebb, the beach presented the same pavement-like surface as yesterday. Moreover, there was no indication of heavy winds to deter the record attempts.

When Sir Malcolm shot down the beach on his spectacular first run, he took timing officials and spectators by surprise because it had been understood this run was merely to have been a trial. But, sensing the coordination between perfect beach and roaring motor, he stepped on the gas and plunged southward at such speed that officials could scarcely believe their own timing devices.

Without waiting for an inspection of tires or mechanism, the daring pilot, squeezed low in the cockpit and huddled over the huge wheel, turned the Bluebird under its own power at the 12-mile post and aimed his blue projectile northward. He streaked over the course, brought the hurtling craft to a halt before the stands and leaped out.

The A. A. A. timers announced the official clocking as follows:

One mile—south 13.46 seconds at 287.450 miles an hour; north—14.89 seconds at 241.773 miles an hour. Two-way average 14.175 seconds and 253.968 miles an hour.

One kilometer—south: 8.53 seconds, or 262 miles an hour; north: 9.27 seconds or 241.303 miles an hour. Two-way average, 8.90 seconds and 251.340 miles an hour.

Five kilometers—south 44.33 seconds or 252.304 miles an hour; north 42.77 seconds or 231.710 miles an hour. Two-way average 46.30 seconds and 241.569 miles an hour.

Campbell had established his previous records of the one mile, 245.733 miles an hour, and one kilometer, 246.086 miles an hour, at Daytona Beach Feb. 25, 1931. He made his five kilometer record of 216.045 miles an hour at Verneuk Pan, South Africa, April 26, 1929.

Sports Parade

BY HENRY MCLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 25—(UP)—Once again John McGraw has proved his right to the title of "baseball's master mind." Approached suddenly-like by a reporter in Los Angeles and asked "what about the National League race this year?" McGraw, without so much as a second's thought, replied: "The St. Louis Cardinals is the team to beat."

The Cardinals' now on earth besides a master mind would have picked that bunch of misfits to win anything; and who, besides a McGraw, would see possibilities in a team that couldn't do any better than win the National flag in 1930 and the world's series in 1931? Certainly, his reply, a masterpiece of sound, original thinking, if there ever was one, puts to route those critics who, chagrined by the Giants' failure to win a pennant since 1924, ranked McGraw as a has-been.

The man may be starting his 30th year as manager of the Giants but the old cephalic lobe still is working 60 seconds every minute, 60 minutes every hour, 24 hours every day, seven days every week, four weeks every month, and 52 weeks every year. It couldn't be at all surprising to hear McGraw predict the eventual success of the flying machine and the popularity of sleeping late in the morning before the year's out.

With McGraw's nomination of the Cardinals as the "threat" team there can be no quibbling. But there is room for argument in his statement that Burleigh Grimes is "practically through." Practically through what, losing? The old splitter won 19 and lost but 9 for the Cards last year, in addition to pitching two victories in the world series. And that two-hitter he tossed off against the Athletics looked like everything but the performance of a man who was "practically through."

If Grimes, with 19 and 9 for 1931 is through, what about some of Mister McGraw's own pitchers? Carl Hubbell, for example, who won but 14 while losing 12. Or Bill Walker with 16 and 9. Or Mitchell with 13 and 11. Our bet is that Burleigh will win 15 or more for the Cubs.

Reports from our confidential guide in Miami have it that Aknah-ton, the "ringer" horse who ran in the third race Tuesday under the alias of Gailmont, resembled a four-legged rainbow after having been subjected to a couple of shower baths and the rain that fell at Hialeah yesterday.

The chappies who dyed Gailmont or Aknah-ton, failed, it seems, to choose a water-proof dye. As a result, each washing brought to light a new colored coat. Before the first application of the hose Gailmont was a beautiful brown. A little water and he faded into a lovely salmon pink. A few more gallons of water and Gailmont was a dappled gray.

Today's baths may reveal him as a two-toned Shetland pony.

Leap Year Birthday Cakes Rare For 6000 Extra Day U. S. Babies

Lazy Calendar Races After Old Sol

By NEA Service

According to Mr. Stork's official statistics there will be 6000 or more babies on the one day in Leap Year when birthdays are at a premium.

More than 6000 babies born on Feb. 29 will not have a birthday for the next four years and everybody knows that the first four years, what with teething and all, are the toughest.

Some of the boys and girls, however, consider that they have had a break. But this was in their later years. The birthdays come so seldom.

Rossini, the composer, for example, was one of the famous men who took advantage of his Leap Year birthday. He was born on Feb. 29, 1792, and he called his friends together on Feb. 29, 1864, to celebrate what he was pleased to call his 18th birthday, declaring that he was about to turn over a new leaf and discard the frivolities of his teens.

The Leap Year birthday mix-up is just another phase of man's futile efforts to devise an accurate calendar.

The ancient Chaldeans discovered the true year as measured by the revolution of the earth around the sun, which takes 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 45.51 seconds. The Chaldeans failed to frame a correct calendar system, however, and in 46 B. C. Julius Caesar decided something must be done about it. He created Leap Year with its extra day every four years.

But Caesar's average year was 365 1/4 days long, while the sun's revolution is 11 minutes less than that. So the calendar continued to creep ahead until in 1582 it was leading by 10 days.

Pope Gregory decided to stop such an error. He found it was equivalent to an excess of about three days in four centuries, so he decreed that of the last years of centuries only those divisible by 400 are Leap Year. Thus, 1600 was a Leap Year, but 1700, 1800, and 1900 were not.

But there is still an error of 44 minutes per century.

So an extra Leap Year day will have to be omitted in 1844—if the calendar is to be correct.

And somebody will lose another birthday. Maybe the babies born today will be those somebodies.

national interest demanded be defended.

At the outset both the Osaka industrialists and the militarists believed a mere show of force would be sufficient to accomplish their aims. I don't believe anyone thought the stubborn resistance the Chinese put up was possible.

However, the die being cast, the government was confronted with the embarrassing situation which made retreat from its purposes impossible, unless it sacrificed prestige to a point where even the victory in Manchuria would be jeopardized.

Army Is Worried

There isn't a doubt that the army is worried over the extent of the struggle. Army leaders realize that the empire faces a crystallizing hostile world opinion which no country would be able to withstand indefinitely.

Among more frank and outspoken army men it even is admitted that perhaps the hand had been overplayed. But there add, at the same time, that there is no alternative now but to play the cards to the end.

Numbers of things have happened that cast interesting lights over the picture. For example, an incipient anti-war program was discovered in the National Military Academy at Tokyo two weeks ago. Some cadets were court martialed.

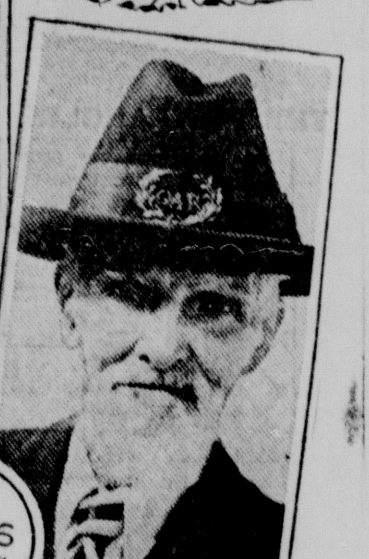

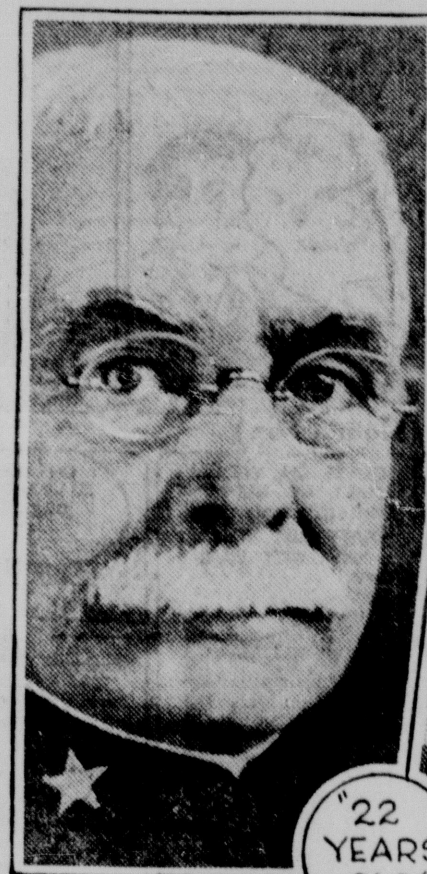

The navy always has been regarded as opposed to extending the Shanghai conflict. One reason for this is that the nature of the service of navy men has given them a keener appreciation of foreign opinion. Then, of course, there has been the traditional rivalry between the navy and the army.

Intellectuals' Opposed

The so-called "intellectuals" have opposed a war on the ground that world opinion would condemn and isolate Japan. Also, in this group there has been sustained the theory that Baron Kijuro Shidehara is right in his contention that cooperation between Chinese and Japanese is the cornerstone of any solution of their problem that may be erected.

For the same reason, certain of the elder statesmen, including Prince Kimmochi Saionji and Count Nobuki Makino, opposed the Shanghai adventure.

Now even the capitalists are in opposition because the army extremists have openly threatened measures

Leap Year's extra day, Feb. 29, makes birthdays a rarity for about 6000 U. S. babies. Above are two men who have celebrated only 22 times. Left is Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N., retired, who is 88 years old, but has had only one-fourth of his birthdays. Right is John W. Claspill of Rock Island, Ill., who is 92. He even lost out on another birthday because 1900 wasn't a leap year.

Waltonians Call Washington Real Conservationist

Chicago—To honor George Washington, the "first American conservationist," the Izak Walton League of America through its chapters from coast to coast will either plant or dedicate memorial trees and forests on February 22, the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth, it was announced this week by the National Headquarters of the League.

The program of tree planting will continue through the spring in some states, League officials added as they stressed several facts regarding Washington's conservation activities.

In focusing attention on Washington as a conservationist, M. K. Reckford, General Manager of the Walton organization, issued the following statement to League chapters regarding the first president's outdoor interests:

"Washington undoubtedly realized that man owes a duty to the future just as he owes a debt to the past. His care for the lands of Mount Vernon was evidence of the trait imbedded in the best men to hand down unimpaired to the future generations what has been transmitted to them."

"It is interesting to the League which is constantly working for reforestation and the preservation of America's wild life resources, that Washington was always concerned with planting trees and he used hedges for fences so that he could save trees and add to the number of shrubs around his place. Therefore the League may well emulate his example on his 200th birthday and give its attention to the subject of tree planting."

History states that the first American loved to run foxes and liked an occasional duck hunt. In 1678 he records that he "went a ducking between breakfast and dinner and killed two mallards and five bald geese."

TREASURY CAN'T ESTIMATE TOTAL OF INCOME TAX

Expert Unable to Find Basis On Which To Forecast Amount

Washington, Feb. 25 —(AP)—Treasury experts, who in years past have forecast almost exactly the amount of income tax the government would collect on March 15 each year, find themselves in a quandary this year and unable to find a basis upon which to estimate tax receipts next month.

The sharp decline in income in 1930, which caused income tax collections last year to drop off $550,000,000, was continued in 1931. In addition tax payers will write off losses this year, it is feared, in greater amounts than last year. The reductions which will be taken for making accurate estimates of the amount that may be collected from the first installment of tax on 1931 incomes. This is due the fifteenth of next month.

In all, probably less than 2,000,000 persons will pay income tax this year. In normal years the number was reduced from around 4,000,000 to 2,500,000 through broadening of exemptions but the decreased business is expected to take about half a million persons off the list because their incomes have dropped below the taxable amount.

If the government collects $250,000,000 from income tax payments next month officials will feel they are lucky, but some doubt that this amount will be realized.

Last year the March 15 tax payments amounted to $334,830,000, a drop of $225,000,000 from the year previous, while in 1929 the first quarter returned the record amount of $601,363,000 and in 1928, $515,669,000.

Income tax payments this fiscal year (since last July 1) have amounted to $651,058,714 as compared with $1,162,717,198 in the same period of the previous year.

The dime-a-dance girl

By Joan Clayton

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, MOLLY, her elder sister, MYRA, and her young brother, MIKE.

She is in love with LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist. Larry is engaged to ELIZABETH BOWEN, a debutante.

STEVEN BARCLAY, 37 and her employer, loves Ellen. Myra and Molly openly favor Barclay and Ellen quarrels with them over this partiality. Because of gossip at the store she decides to see Barclay no more. Without Ellen's knowledge Molly invites the older man to dinner, borrowing money for the occasion. Ellen is angry and is still further displeased when Barclay gives Mike a much desired bicycle.

That night Barclay asks Ellen to marry him and she refuses. Pride will not permit her to tell him she loves Larry. Lawditching she leaves Barclay with the hope of winning her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XX

DAYS passed. Difficult days for Ellen. Days when her efforts to meet insurance payments, milk bills and butcher bills seemed hardly worth the effort. Days when she needed sleep and rest and leisure and felt that the burden of the double job, so vitally necessary for the present, was too much to bear.

She had not broken with Steven. She could not. She saw him in the store and occasionally outside—usually at luncheon. He did not speak again of marriage but in a thousand ways he unconsciously revealed to her what was in his heart.

There were times those hurried, flurried days when she forgot her problems, delicious, thrilling times made of the stuff of dreams. Those were the hours she spent with Larry. In vain Molly had protested, had wept, had become angry. Ellen persisted in her determination to see him when she chose. One Monday evening the quarrel between her and Molly had come to an ugly climax.

Larry had arrived at the apartment, unannounced, and Molly had asked him to leave. Afterward there had been a spirited scene between mother and daughter resulting in a victory of sorts for Ellen. At any rate Molly had stopped her visible campaign against Larry. What was in her mind the girl did not know.

On Tuesday morning Ellen went to the basement lockers at Barclay's to hang up her hat and coat. Absorbed in her usual morning weariness, she was slow to notice the group of saleswomen clustered about the mirror heading the row of lockers. As she removed her hat she heard her name spoken. Ellen stared at the whispering group and saw that Mrs. Bondy was in the center.

The Chinese evidently are well instructed and from long experience in warfare can successfully conceal and protect their machine guns. On the other hand, as soon as Chinese infantry break cover they run into heavy Japanese shell fire, which seems very effective in the open.

General Tsai Ting Kai's 19th Route Army has acquitted itself well in the past five days' fighting and deserves rest. Most of the casualties of the last two days have been from the 88th and 87th Divisions of Chiang Kai-Shek's command, which have been very properly placed under command of General Tsai, thus avoiding any confusion as to authority.

This has been done by the National government, hence the action by the Japanese can no longer be confined to the attempted punishment of what they have claimed to be the undisciplined 19th Route Army.

The entire Japanese force is undoubtedly splendidly equipped and with ample ammunition, while the Chinese forces have been reported as poorly equipped and short of ammunition. Still, the Chinese have one arsenal south of Shanghai and power factories of their own and up to date from the appearance of the battle, there has been no indication of an ammunition shortage on their part.

Chicago—Capt. Frank Hawks,

The girl's face blazed. Her throat felt dry and her hands began to shake. She started slowly toward the group, recognized Jenny Elkins, and saw that Jenny was watching her progress with a fascinated fear. None of the others perceived the white-faced, angry girl until she was upon them.

"Perhaps you'll let me share the story," Ellen said softly. "It seems only fair since you're discussing me."

Consternation smote the group. No one moved or spoke. Jenny's compact clattered from her hand. She dared not stoop. The others were embarrassed, a shamed, frightened. Mrs. Bondy saw her power slipping. She made an effort to regain it.

"Suppose you tell us, dearie," she remarked. "We'd all love to know what's like being an old man's darling."

For a moment the issue hung in the balance. Then one girl laughed in nervous hysteria. The others caught her up. A wave of high, cruel laughter beat at Ellen's ears and drove the blazing color from her face. She saw that her cause was lost. An almost overpowering impulse to announce that she was engaged to Steven swept over her.

It would be a way to stop that laughter and wipe the complacent smile from Mrs. Bondy's face.

Ellen hesitated, made her decision and gave the giggling group a proud, scornful glance as she moved off without another word. Her thoughts were spinning round and round. Her heart seethed with rage and humiliation.

SHE took the elevator to Steven's office. She waited until the thumping of her heart subsided before she knocked. Steven himself opened the door. His look of surprise faded into delighted welcome. Then he saw that she was unstrung and wretched and he came close to her, drawing her inside.

"What is it?" he asked, concerned and peremptory.

Ellen began to tremble. Exhausted from the force of anger and humiliation, close to tears as she heard the anxiety in his voice, she felt a subtle, almost overpowering weakness. Unconsciously she tightened her grip on his hands and as she leaned forward her troubled face came close to his.

The gesture had its immediate effect. Barclay's heart beat high with sudden, illogical hope. Quite simply he drew her into his arms. At once Ellen was herself again. "No, no," she whispered.

Hope left his face and pain came there. His arms dropped. He moved backward and a step away from her.

"What is it?" he repeated unsteadily.

For a moment Ellen did not respond. She knew what she had done and fumbled wretchedly for a way to mend the pain she had inflicted. But there was no way and the very silence served to heighten her memory and his memory of that lost instant.

"Please don't think I'm always coming to you with trouble," she said at last abruptly.

"You know, I'd never think that," he interrupted gently. "Sit down, my dear."

She sat down. All her careful phrases tumbled her. She thought she would die before his look.

"Go on," he said more urgently. His brown eyes were upon her face.

"Because something—something a little unpleasant has happened," she faltered desperately. "I would like to know if I may be transferred from cretonnes to another department."

"I've been thinking of that myself," he said at once, thrusting far into the background his own thoughts, his own hopes. Ellen saw with relief that he was business-like once more, composed and competent.

"You're lost there," he went on. "I've been thinking of another job for you."

"What sort of a job?"

"I had already prepared a memorandum for you. You're so prickly with pride that I want you to know I haven't created the job on the spur of the moment."

HE drew three typed sheets of paper clipped together from a drawer and slid them across the desk. Ellen read them, wondering. The first was from Lorene Elliott, the buyer of misses' dresses. She needed an assistant buyer and asked for a suggestion.

The second, from Steven to her, reiterated Ellen's qualifications and asked for the buyer's approval. Across the bottom of the sheet Lorene had scrawled "O. K.—let me see her." The third contained a brief request that Ellen call in Steven's office.

"These buyers are emperors and empresses in their own fields," Steven explained as Ellen looked up at him. "Miss Elliott telephoned me about 15 minutes ago asking you to come see her some time this morning."

Ellen glanced again at the slips in her hand. A faint color rose in her face. It was the dream of every salesgirl to become a buyer, a dream few realized. Buyers moved in a world apart from ordinary employees. They came and went almost at will. The girl felt an unexpected thrill at the idea of becoming included in such a select group, a thrill that was colored by the thought of leaping over the heads of her fellows and escaping the reach of their cruel tongues.

"Don't think I'm impertinent," she said with youthful awkwardness, "but did you suggest me for this job because you thought I was qualified to be a buyer or because you liked me?"

"I was afraid you'd ask that," he responded with a rueful, confused laugh. "I'll try to be honest. I think it was a mixture of the two. You're intelligent and you have taste and that qualifies you. As for the rest I did suggest you because I like you—although that's a pale way of putting it."

Ellen flushed furiously.

"You're to understand there are no strings to the job," he remarked suddenly, flushing in turn. "But you do understand that, don't you?"

Ellen longed to tell her, he wanted her to know, that she held a place in his life apart from any other human being. He wanted her to know that it was not a prosaic, workaday job that he desired to lay in her lap but every-thing beautiful and lovely in the world. Jewels she should have—Jewels and furs and clothes. He wanted to wrap her in the garment of his love and lay the world at her feet. But he lacked the words to say those things.

Ellen suspected dimly what it must have cost him to say so little. How easy and simple he had made her path and with what infinite graciousness he had done so! In her gratitude and relief she was near saying just then the words that he longed to hear.

"I know you wouldn't tie strings to anything you offered," she said at last tremulously, feeling for the second time a subtle, treacherous weakness running through her body. "I could never think that. I know you're the kindest man I've ever met."

The kindest man she had ever met! Steven would have preferred something else, perhaps. But she had said that. His dark eyes lighted. He leaned across the desk that separated them.

"Then you won't be afraid of me any more, Ellen?"

"No."

"You won't suspect my motives again?"

"No," she murmured.

How grateful she was just then! How much she admired and respected him! Victory was in Steven's hands. As he reached out to grasp it the telephone on the desk rang shatteringly. The moment was gone and the spell that had entrapped the girl was broken. Though he removed the receiver and did not answer Barclay saw that Ellen was relieved, saw that the telephone had robbed him of his triumph. He was too wise to attempt to recapture a mood that had passed.

"You'd better see Miss Elliott immediately," he said in a matter of fact way.

"I'll do that. And thank you again."

As the girl slipped out of the office she—wondered.

FRIENDS SEEKING TO STOP GARNER BOOM IN GEORGIA

Country Is Treated To Contradictive Political Move

Washington, Feb. 25 —(AP)—The country was treated today to the contradictory spectacle of Speaker Garner's strongest supporters for the presidency pleading against efforts to secure for him the Georgia delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, whose leader of the Garner forces and intimate friend of the speaker, wired Judge G. H. Howard of Atlanta a request that he withdraw his Garner-proxy candidacy in the Georgia primary. The request was coupled with the flat assertion that the Speaker was not a candidate and would not file in any state primary. Nevertheless, word from Georgia was that Judge Howard would continue his efforts.

That Garner would not go into any primaries requiring consent, direct or indirect, of the candidate himself was a foregone conclusion in view of the Speaker's determined stand to have nothing to do with the movement on his behalf. The Rayburn move may be interpreted as an effort to protect the Speaker from any appearance of tacit consent to the proxy race. It might be a move to prevent a decisive defeat, since the state's vote has been considered to be in the pocket of Governor Roosevelt of New York.

Some observers saw in it a disavowal of any connection between the Garner boom and the famed "stop-Roosevelt" drive, and forecast that the efforts on behalf of the Speaker henceforth would be confined almost entirely to development of such enthusiasm all over the country as to make him the likeliest choice in case of a convention deadlock.

Substantially the same issue will be along in California's primary where a Garner slate of candidates is in the making, along with groups for Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith. It remains to be seen whether Rayburn and the other Garnerites will seek

PATRIOTIC SONG WAS WRITTEN IN FEBRUARY OF 1832

Words Of "America" To Be Century Old
This Month

Boston, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Every American school child knows that this month marks the 200th birthday anniversary of George Washington. Probably few know that it also marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of a patriotic song they often sing—America.

It was a dismal February day in 1832. Samuel Francis Smith, a native of Boston and a senior at the Theological Seminary then conducted by Phillips Academy, was sitting in a house on Main Street, Andover, looking over some German music books. Of what then happened Smith, years later, wrote:

Written on Scrap Paper
"Falling in with the tune of one of them (the German songs) and being pleased with its easy and simple movement, I glanced at the German words, and seeing that they were patriotic, instantly felt the impulse to write a patriotic hymn of the same tune. Seizing a scrap of paper, I put upon it, within half an hour, the verses substantially as stand today."

Thus, while the tune of America is like that of the British, God Save the King, it reached Smith as a German hymn. The tune with the poem Smith put to it, beginning, My Country, 'Tis of Thee, was first played in public at Park Street Church, Boston, Fourth of July, 1832. It was 10 years later before it became generally known.

Though George Washington had been dead more than 30 years when Smith wrote the words of America, there is little doubt that the Father of His Country knew an earlier hymn by the same name.

Published in 1770
The original America was first published in 1770—music by a versatile Bostonian named William Billings, a tanner with a passion for singing in, and training, choirs, and words by a certain Rev. Dr. Byles, Boston preacher-poet.

Belief that Washington knew this America is based on the fact that other tunes by Billings, published in the same book, were well known to soldiers of the Continental Army, including Chester, a rousing anthem with rhythm and movement well adapted to drum and fife.

Billings, America appeared as the first piece of music in his New England Psalm Singer, a thick volume of his own compositions which was the first complete book of American compositions to be published in this country.

Most thinking people are aware that within the last two or three years various problems facing humanity have some how or other been becoming intensified. In fact, it is possible to take a shorter period, say the last twelve months, and to conclude that whatever the reason, whether by the high point of a cycle or by coincidence, a great many very vital problems are being urged to a head more or less at the same time.

There is no lack of literature dealing with progress in these various cardinal aspects of human development, but it is tempting, and in a way no less instructive, to consider for a moment not the progress but the lag of each problem. It does not amount to the same thing for, regarded from this angle, it is possible to see in what respect there is a hanging back and how it affects the other problems. The wooden spoon in this competition of problems to become solved has to be awarded to world economics; for awhile there are previous disappointments in other fields, in the field of economy practical work has been at a standstill or worse and it is only in sweeping promises, heedless of disillusion and dismay, that there has been any optimism to be gleaned.

It is strange indeed that economy which is merely an arrangement made by men and depending comparatively little on acts of God and unknown forces still hidden from science, should have drifted so far out of man's control. In fact the

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is liver. It should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

world seems to be making better progress in more ambitious fields than that of economy. Compared to the profound problems of the universe, it would be thought that mere matters of buying, selling, production, consumption and so forth would be more or less child's play, BUT EXPERIENCE SEEMS TO BE PROVING OTHERWISE.
